Ulster County Voters Find '76 A Year of Indecision

By ROB BORSELLINO
Freeman staff

The key to this year's election, according to a cross section of Ulster County residents, is not disinterest, but indecision.

"There's just too many issues," said a cop at the corner of Main and Partition streets in Saugerties.

"You might like Ford's foreign policy, but on the environment he's weak. Same thing with Carter, good on some things and bad on others. I just don't know."

A patron at the bar in the Exchange Hotel in Saugerties seemed to think that interest was very high this year.

"People definitely have an interest, particularly at the local level. I think they realize that they better take an interest in politics before it's too late. On Ford and Carter it's still too close to call and people will probably make up their minds when they get in the booth. I might have to flip a coin or something."

The cashier at Mower's Food Market in Woodstock credited a local candidate for generating public interest in that community.

"Steve Shearer (Democratic candidate seeking a seat on the Woodstock Town Board) stirred people to the point where they actually got out and registered this year. This town is traditionally Republican, but the Democrats are coming on strong. There doesn't seem to be much interest in the race for Congress or the Assembly. I think Carter and Mondale will win in Woodstock."

A store owner in Olivebridge said that this year's campaign seemed "very quiet and very ordinary. There hasn't been much talk about politics."

But up in Shokan things haven't been so quiet.

"My husband and his friends do a lot of talking about politics," said the owner of the D & M Market. "All the time the men come in here and all they talk about is politics and more politics."

Southward in High Falls Dutch Moone, owner of the Town Pantry, said he finds interest high and indecision even higher.

"I've never seen such indecision. People are more undecided now then they were two months ago. I've seen Ford and Carter supporters change their minds back and forth several times. The moment of truth won't come until they get in that booth and pull the curtain and it'll be the same way with me."

Unlike most of the people we spoke with, Moone was eager to issue his predictions for the election.

"It'll be tight, but I think Carter will win. Hinchey, Fish and McHugh have nothing to worry about. The Conservative endorsement will put Kirschner in the Treasurer's seat.

Then there was the woman in Kingston who took somewhat of a different attitude about the election.

"Politics. Don't come in here talking to me about politics. I got enough trouble paying the bills to be worrying about politics. I got no use for the whole bunch of them."

World in Brief

Chrysler Contract Being Pursued

DETROIT (UPI) — Bargaining teams for the United Auto workers and Chrysler Corp., met for nine hours Saturday and five hours Sunday in an attempt to avert a second auto industry strike this year.

Details of a new contract for 118,000 U.S. and Canadian Chrysler workers must be wrapped up by Friday to meet a strike deadline. UAW Vice President Douglas A. Fraser reported some "minor progress," but said none of the major contract issues have been resolved.

Phoenix Missile Was Recovered

LONDON (UPI) — A $371,000 Phoenix missile that was jarred loose from a Tomcat F14 plane when it toppled from the deck of the aircraft carrier USS John F. Kennedy Sept. 14, was recovered Saturday from the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean about 100 miles north of Scotland's Orkney Islands, the Navy announced Sunday.

The plane has not yet been recovered, but a recovery task force is studying new plans for its salvage. There had been fears the Soviet Union might move in and seize either the missile or the plane, both of which are new and supersecret.

The 1976 Ballot Is Crowded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twelve other candidates for president, beside Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter, will appear on various state ballots Tuesday, according to the Federal Election Commission.

Included among the 12 are: Roger MacBride, who heads the Libertarian Party ticket, on 32 state ballots; Independent Eugene McCarthy, on 29; Peter Camejo of the Socialist Workers party, on 28; the U.S. Labor party's Lyndon Larouche on 24; Gus Hall of the Communist Party U.S.A. on 20; Lester Maddox, of the American Independent Party is on 19 ballots, and Thomas Anderson of the American Party is on 18.

Unemployment Is Killing People

WASHINGTON (UPI) — High unemployment may contribute to high rates of heart attacks, other fatal diseases, homicide, suicide, total deaths, crime and mental illness, according to a Congressional study released Saturday.

In the report, prepared for Congress' Joint Economic Committee, Prof. M. Harvey Brenner of Johns Hopkins University compared fluctuations in the unemployment rate with changes in seven "indicators of social stress." He said he found a "statistically significant" correlation between unemployment and all seven of these signs.

Soviets Discover Enormous Camel

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet news agency Tass reported the finding of fossilized bones of a prehistoric camel as large as a modern elephant, by scientists working in the mountains of Soviet Central Asia.

Tass said the scientists estimated the creature had lived between five and six million years ago. The bones, including a skull almost one yard long, were found in the north Tien Shan mountains in Kazakhstan, near the Soviet Union's border with China.

Insults Earn Prison Terms

RHODES, Greece (UPI) — Twelve persons, convicted on charges of insulting police and resisting arrest during antiAmerican demonstrations last May, were sentenced to prison terms ranging from four to seven months by a civil court Sunday. Twenty-five others were acquitted of the same charges.

The 37 defendants, mostly high school youths, were accused of instigating and leading incidents which erupted in Rhodes when the U.S. 6th Fleet aircraft carrier America, accompanied by a destroyer, anchored off Rhodes on a goodwill visit.

IBM ESCAPEE?

No, it's not a secret IBM project on the loose — just Kingston trick-or-treater Roy Simpson making his rounds on Elmendorf Street Sunday night. The youth in the robot suit is the son of Mrs. Fay Quent, 29 Franklin St.

Rosenstock Is Served With A Civil Summons

KINGSTON — A civil summons suing Assembly candidate Maurice Rosenstock for libel in a campaign advertisment has been issued in behalf of six Assembly employes and will be served on the Republican candidate or a member of his family sometime today.

Paul Miller, campaign manager for Democratic incumbent Muarice Hinchey, D-101st Dist., said today the summons was in his hand and would be served on Rosenstock "hopefully before noon, but sometime this afternoon."

Six members of Hinchey's staff, inculding Miller, have taken issue with a Rosenstock ad implying that the incumbent has a "tax paid" campaign staff of 14 workers in the public payroll who are active in his campaign.

Rosenstock has repeatedly asserted that his only purpose in running the names, titles and salaries of the 14 Ulster County residents on the Assembly payroll was to show that Hinchey was not running an "all volunteer campaign" as he has claimed.

"All the people on that list have political patronage positions without benefit of civil service examinations" Rosenstock says.

The Ellenville Republican has refused to back down from his allegations and maintains that he has definite proof that all of the people listed have or are working for the Hinchey campaign.

Union Calls Strike Against Cleaners

Hutton Ordered To Let SEIU Alone

By SID LEAVITT
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — A federal agency investigator has found "merit" in a union complaint against Hutton Nursing Home and has directed the Kingston firm to post a notice to its employes that it won't interfere with union organizing activities.

Meanwhile, on another local front, the same union — the Service Employes International Union — has called a strike for midnight Tuesday against three cleaning and maintenance firms which do business in Kingston, notably for IBM.

The SEIU has been campaigning at Hutton for the past three months in an attempt to organize some 77 nursing home employes. The union's charge that management had kept employes under surveillance, questioned and threatened them about union activities was filed with the National Labor Relations Board in September.

"It appears, based on all the facts and evidence before us, that the (union) charge has merit," NLRB field investigator John H. Sauter told both the union and company in an Oct. 26 letter.

Sauter directed that the company post a so-called "settlement agreement" to its employes, assuring them it won't keep them under surveillance, question, interfere, restrain or coerce them in whatever union choice they might make.

The employes are scheduled to vote Nov. 30 on whether to accept the union.

The settlement notice must be signed by the company by Wednesday or the case will be forwarded to a federal judge. The notice wouldn't be a concession on the company's part that it had actually engaged in those activities in the past, an NLRB spokesman in Albany said.

Nursing home administrator James Scuderi couldn't be reached this morning, but he was expected in later in the day. Company attorney Nicholas T. Scott said Scuderi must decide whether to sign the settlement agreement.

The company already has agreed to the Nov. 30 election, Scott noted.

Meanwhile, on the cleaning and maintenance front, SEIU area director L. Kevin Becraft said some 50 Kingston workers will join 160 other employes of three Poughkeepsie-based cleaning firms in a strike at midnight Tuesday.

Eastern Cleaning Service, Emerald Renovators and Rhodes Cleaning have "failed to bargain in good faith," Becraft said. The present three-year contract expired Sunday with no new settlement. However, five other companies are continuing to negotiate, Becraft said.

Accused of Giving Youth False Alibi

City Teacher Is Arrested

By LYNN MULVANEY
Freeman staff

KINGSTON — A Kingston High School teacher, 34-year-old Donald Avallone of Saugerties, has been arrested by Hurley State Police and charged with hindering prosecution in connection with the Oct. 1 robbery of a branch bank in Grand Gorge in Delaware County.

Avallone is alleged to have provided an alibi for one of the accused robbers, Donald Schatzel, 21, 229 Lucas Ave., Kingston, for the day of the bank holdup.

Under questioning Schatzel is alleged to have told the Bureau of Criminal Investigation that Schatzel told him to set up the alibi.

Arraigned before Hurley Town Justice C. H. DuMond, Avallone was charged with hindering prosecution in the second degree, a felony for which he could receive up to four years in prison. He was released in his own recognizance.

Police say they went to Avallone's home Thursday and asked if Schatzel had had an appointment with him on the day in question. Avallone reportedly suggested the police accompany him to the school and look at his appointment book. The book listed a 10 a.m. appointment with Schatzel.

Later, under questioning, Schatzel is alleged to have admitted he asked Avallone to set up the alibi for him.

Schatzel was arrested Oct. 24 by state police and FBI agents. Arrested with him was Mark Oakley, 21, of Glenford and an 18-year-old whose identity was withheld because of his age. Schatzel and Oakley were charged with robbery in the first degree and and the juvenile was granted youthful offender status.

County Taxes Will Jump Again

KINGSTON — Both majority and minority leaders of the county's finance committee predict Ulster County's property tax rate will climb between 20 and 30 per cent next year.

Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-Dist.8, said this morning the annual levy "wouldn't exceed last year's 32 per cent increase, but would come close."

Minority Leader Louis Klein, D-Dist.6, agrees with Savago's estimate and says the rate will proabbly rise between 25 of 30 per cent for property owners.

Both men agree that the legislature's concerted effort to hold the line on spending this year has been somewhat successful in keeping the amount to be raised by taxes at this level.

"What you have to keep in mind though", says Klein, is we also have a one-half per cent increase in the sales tax going into effect in March 1977...what we've done is shifted the amount to be raised by taxes from one form to another."

The increase will put sales tax in the county at 5½ per cent.

Savago also said some county departments may be coming in with surpluses because of the freeze on 1976 spending, but just how much that surplus will be is unknown.

"We've held back on replacing about 98 people in jobs since the spring and that will have to show up somewhere," the chairman said. "We've saved a lot of money with the freeze, though."

Klein said that this year's budget "has been trimmed to the bone" and doesn't anticipate an increase of more than $4 million in the overall budget for 1977.

Last year's bottom line was close to $55 million.

Klein estimated that the increased sales tax would probably bring in about $2.3 million next year, and the raise in property taxes another $3 million.

The finance committee is still working on the budget and will release its final figures Nov. 15.

A public hearing on the spending proposal is anticipated on Dec. 8.

His Name is 'Ford,' Rosie

HAUPPAGUE (UPI) — New York Republican State Chairman Richard Rosenbaum joined President Ford on the campaign platform — and in the verbal blooper act.

Introducing Ford, famous for his own verbal slips in public appearances, Rosenbaum told a rally the candidate's name was "Gerald Fraud."

The crowd roared with laughter, led by the President. Rosenbaum blushed.

Illinois Had Strange Halloween

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill. (UPI) — For $20, Robert Watson will eat a fresh hog's eyeball — or at least swallow it.

The unusual hor d'oeuvres, the subject of a lot of jokes about eyeballs and crackers, were being served at Pete Jackaniez' Halloween party in his southern Illinois farmhouse. Some of the guests bet Robert Watson $20 he wouldn't eat one.

The evening wore on and finally Watson, 23, West Frankfort, grabbed an eyeball and swallowed it.

When Watson asked for his money, his fellow gamblers said nothing doing. It was swallowed, not chewed.

Watson stormed off and returned, police said later, with a 12-gauge shotgun and a .22-caliber pistol. He lined John Roberts, 23, and Roberts' wife up against a wall and demanded the $20.

A scuffle ensued. The .22 was empty but the shotgun went off and Roberts was shot in the buttocks. Union Hospital treated him for superficial wounds.

Early Saturday authorities charged Watson with reckless conduct and aggravated assault with a gun.

In a separate Halloween incident in Kankakee, Ill., Anthony Butler, 20, Mason, Tenn., was charged with battery for punching a werewolf at a "haunted" house. The house is rigged and staffed by the Jaycees each year for children. The werewolf, an unidentified Jaycee member, did not require hospitalization, authorities said.

He Gets Bishop's Backing

Ford Stumped New York

By UPI

President Ford, hoarse but confident, made a final campaign pitch for New York's 41 electoral votes Sunday and received the indirect backing of the Bishop of Buffalo's Roman Catholic Diocese.

Ford, while attending a Roman Catholic mass at a church in Buffalo's predominantly Polish section, received the indirect support of Bishop Edward Head in a letter read at the service.

The President attended a brunch and rally in downtown Buffalo and stopped briefly in Rochester for an airport rally before flying to the New York City-Long Island area later in the day.

Bishop Head's letter, read at all Sunday masses in the diocese, said the church "is not endorsing parties or candidates" but added that it "is not neutral to rights, especially to the right to life."

Bishop Head urged Catholics to use the ballot box in their fight for a constitutional amendment banning abortion on demand.

The letter was seen as a nod toward Ford, who supports an amendment giving states the right to ban abortions. His opponent, Demcorat Jimmy Carter, says he opposes abortions personally, but does not back such an amendment.

About 4,000 persons jammed into the 103-year-old St. Stanislaus Church for the Mass. Ford was accompanied by Buffalo-area Congressman Jack Kemp, New York Senator Jacob Javits, state GOP chairman Richard Rosenbaum and other Republican figures.

Later Ford attended a downtown brunch and rally before continuing on to Rochester.

A chilled but enthusiastic crowd estimated at 13,500 waited for about two hours in a steady rain and 40-degree temperatures to greet the President at a brief airport rally.

Wearing a topcoat but hatless, Ford thanked the gathering for "a tremendous turnout in Michigan weather."

Hoarse from his extremely heavy speaking schedule, Ford spoke for only several minutes, mainly acknowledging local Republicans and urging the crowd to vote on Tuesday.

Flanking the president were movie star Hugh O'Brien, a Rochester native, and television personality Joe Garagiola, who has been appearing with Ford in recent days. Also onstage were area GOP Congressmen Frank Horton and Barber Conable.

Following his speech, Ford shook hands with spectators briefly before returning to Air Force One, his plane. The entire stop lasted only about 20 minutes.

Ford then flew to Long Island for a heavy schedule of downstate appearances.

During the upstate swing, the weary-looking Republican candidate was obviously buoyed by an independent weekend poll showing he had trimmed Jimmy Carter's lead in New York to three points. Both Ford and Carter consider New York crucial to their chances on Tuesday.

At his appearances, he stressed the race was so close in New York now that every vote counted.

Ford kicked off his weekend swing through the state with a Saturday night rally in downtown Syracuse. An overflow crowd of 12,500 at the Onondaga County War Memorial welcomed Ford with banners reading: "This is Ford Country."

During his appearances in all three cities, Ford failed even once to mention opponent Carter's name.

Roanoke

Roanoke, Va., with a current metropolitan population of more than 200,000, originated as a settlement called Big Lick. The later name "Roanoke" was taken from an Indian word meaning shell money. The community became a city in 1884 with the linking of the Shenandoah Valley Railroad and the Norfolk and Western Railroad.

Kenyon Pruyn, being led from arraignment

Liquor May Be Key to Mechanicville Shooting

MECHANICVILLE (UPI) — Police are investigating whether liquor may have been the trigger that set off a sniping spree that led to a 31-year-old former Marine being charged with second-degree murder in the death of policeman and another man.

Police identified the suspect as Kenyon W. "Billy" Pruyn, a laborer and Vietnam-era veteran. Chief Joseph Ryan said Pruyn had been drinking at at least one local bar earlier Saturday night.

Acquaintances reported Pruyn was a heavy drinker and sometimes fought with his wife after drinking. His wife and their two children were not home at the time shooting broke out at 9:14 p.m., police said.

About 100 state and local policemen were held at bay for nearly two hours by the gunfire that spewed from a third-floor apartment window on a normally placid street in this Saratoga County city 18 miles north of Albany.

An arsenel of nine highpowered rifles and three 12-gauge shotguns and "a couple of cases of ammo" were found in Pruyn's charred apartment. A fireman said "nine or 10" of the guns were layed out neatly on a bed as if for a planned attack.

Killed was Paul Luther, 21, of Mechanicville, a $3.15-an-hour part-time policeman, and James E. Marsh, 51, a nearby resident who died in a crowded restaurant across the street from the sniper's vantage.

Police sources said Luther, who had been on the force only a few months and was a self-employed carpenter, had given Pruyn a speeding ticket less than two hours before the shooting erupted. However, the sources discounted any connection between the two incidents and said they had not established any motive.

"He took the ticket okay," a police officer who asked not to be identfied said. "He asked how many points it would mean on his license, but was real quiet about it, no fuss, nothing."

Pruyn, product of a prominent family in this factory town of 6,200, was described as "always a weirdo, a really strange, quiet kind of guy" by a resident who said he had known the family "for 35 years."

New York's 41 Electoral Votes Drew Presidential Attention

ALBANY (UPI) — New York's 41 electoral votes are going to be big booty in Tuesday's election — and potentially so crucial in the presidential race that Republican Gerald Ford spent two precious day this weekend pursuing them.

Along with a high-powered, nationwide media blitz, Ford gambled that appearances in Syracuse, Buffalo and Rochester would add to the momentum polls showed he had in New York and add the 41 electoral votes to his column.

Ford planners had all but written off the state to Democrat Jimmy Carter following the GOP convention. But they set their sights much higher after reviewing how they felt a Southern Baptist peanut farmer would be accepted by urbane Catholic and Jewish New Yorkers.

The strategy seemed to have paid off. On the eve of the election, most observers saw Ford and Carter running neck and neck.

But largely because the race was expected to be so close, it appeared that the presidential race would have little coattail effect on the other races to be decided Tuesday — a U.S. Senate seat, selection of 39 congressmen and deciding political control in the state legislature.

The battle for New York's U.S. Senate seat has been a race between two articulate, witty and intelligent candidates. But, it ended as a surprisingly nasty contest.

Incumbent Republican-Conservative James Buckley consistently calls his opponent as "the professor." DemocratLiberal Patrick Moynihan refers to Buckley as a millionaire.

Much of the debate between Buckley and Moynihan involved the cost and size of government, the failure or success of the Ford admininstration to deal with the economy, and other economic issues.

If incumbency has any effect in the voting booth, there will be little change in the makeup of New York's Democratic-dominated congressional delegation, nor in the Republican control of the State Senate or Democratic majority in the Assembly.

Out of 39 congressional seats, 37 incumbents are seeking reelection — 27 Democrats and 10 Republicans. Ironically, the two congressional districts where the voters will have a choice of completely fresh faces involve the seats vacated by Democrat Bella Abzug and Republican Peter Peysey, who both gave office to make a bid for their parties' nomination to the U.S. Senate.

Best guesses are that Democrats will pickup another seat or maintain their 28-11 majority.

In the State Senate, estimates of political gain or loss range from a gain of three for the GOP — which would give them 37 of the 60 seats — to a loss of two — which would leave them with just 32 votes in the house where 31 is the majority needed for control.

Approximately 8.3 million persons will be eligible to vote.

Both Candidates Claim Confidence

Presidential Campaign Ends in Apparent Deadlock

By UPI

It ends today. With one last round of motorcades and speeches. With a final burst of television appeals. With no one ahead.

By almost every measurement available, the 1976 presidential campaign was in a dead heat 24 hours before the election. Both President Ford and Jimmy Carter expressed confidence in victory, but neither left anything to chance before heading home to vote.

Carter started the day in California, whose 45 electoral votes are said to be leaning Republican. The Democratic candidate planned to jet-skip toward Georgia by way of President Ford's Michigan, where the polls say Carter has pulled nearly even for what had been thought to be 21 easy GOP votes.

Ford was already in the neighborhood, starting his final campaign swing in quest of Ohio's 25 votes — once thought safe for Carter — and heading into his home state for a full day of campaigning before settling for the night in Grand Rapids.

Pollster Louis Harris, taking a final weekend look at the race, said Sunday "this election is up for grabs."

Harris, on ABC's "Issues And Answers," compared the situation to the paper-thin decisions of 1960 and 1968. He said the half-hour television appeals Ford and Carter will make on each of the three commercial networks tonight "probably will make the difference."

Harris said he had "no reason to change" his most recent finding of a 45-44 Carter lead.

The Gallup organization announced its latest polling found Ford with a one-point lead, 47 to 46. But both polls were so close that the experts were not predicting winners.

The same "too close to call" picture described by Harris emerged from UPI's 50-state election survey Sunday.

Election bureaus reported that Carter appeared likely to win in 18 states and the District of Columbia with 220 electoral votes and Ford looked like the winner in 16 states with 108 electoral votes. But with 270 electoral votes needed, the outcome hinged on 16 states with 210 votes that were rated too close to call.

Weekend surveys by The Washington Post and The New York Times-CBS News came to similar conclusions of a tossup presidential election.

Carter was in 26-vote Texas most of Sunday, hitting hard on his theme of a national leadership failure under Ford. He told a Fort Worth chicken basket dinner gathering "(Ford) hasn't done thing but let our nation drift and become divided."

Earlier in Dallas, he said "Any businessman or businesswoman who had an executive like this would fire him on the spot, and that's what the American people are going to do."

The Democrat ended his day hitting the same point in San Francisco's Ghiradelli Square, saying, "There is no leadership in the White House and the country has been drifting."

Ford, working all day for the 41 votes of New York, campaigned in heavy rain in Buffalo and Rochester and then in the Long Island bedroom suburbs. He got what appeared to be a near-endorsement from the Roman Catholic Bishop Edward Head while attending church in Buffalo and spoke in an increasingly hoarse voice to big crowds in Suffolk and Nassau counties.

School Closed for Holiday

Onteora Teachers Seek Contract

WEST HURLEY — The Onteora Teachers Association continued its campaign for a contract settlement with the school district today, demonstrating outside the closed West Hurley Elementary School.

The district's high school, junior high school and four elementary schools were closed today by Superintendent Frank M. Marlow when he was unable to come up with enough substitutes to replace 30 teachers who took the day off as a religious holiday.

Robert Barrette, OTA president, said his group would meet tonight to assess the impact of "job actions" that include demonstrations at board of education meetings and a "work to contract" action last week that saw teachers walk from the parking lots into schools at the exact opening time and walk out again at the close of classes for the day. OTA will also discuss future courses of action, Barrette said.

Contract negotiations have been going on since January to replace the teacher contract that expired June 30. Teachers have accused the board of education of dragging its feet in negotiations, a charge which board members deny.

Donald Lawson, the board vice president, said he first learned of the school closing on a local radio station. "I feel I should at least know if I am the one left here in charge," said Lawson, who takes over when Charles Weidner IV, the board president, is away on business.

Weidner, however, said board members should have been aware of the closing, since the board in a workshop session last Wednesday night gave Marlow permission to close if he could not find enough substitutes to replace the teachers taking religious leave.

Barrette stressed that teachers would continue to fulfill all contractural obligations, including athletic coaching and aerving as faculty advisers for various extracurricular clubs.

"Anything that teachers have done as common practice in the past they will continue to do," said today. "We have not done anything to hamper the district's basic progams."

Winner Starts Collecting

KINGSTON — It was a big weekend for Florence Fernandez. Her only son got married Sunday, and she didn't have to worry about what to feed her new in-laws. Two days earlier, she cashed in on a $2,500 grocery prize from the state lottery.

"This is marvelous," Mrs. Fernandez said as Albany regional lottery director James W. McNamara handed her the $2,500 check to endorse Friday noon at Giustino's Importing Co.

That's where she bought the winning ticket, the first grocery prize in the Kingston area, and that's where she chose to collect up to $2,500 in goods within the next year.

"Gosh, she was so excited," said Joyce Swarthout, who six weeks ago sold Mrs. Fernandez the ticket bearing the letter "w" to complete her collection of tickets spelling out "New York."

The chances of finding a "w" among the game's 75 million tickets was 1 in 120,000, but Mrs. Fernandez described herself as "a very positive thinker."

She bought two more tickets Friday in search of a second "w," but the cards yielded "y" and "k."

Although Friday was to be her first installment of groceries, Mrs. Fernandez was in a rush to get to Highland for son Raymond's wedding, and so she picked up only a few canned goods and an Italian pepperoni.

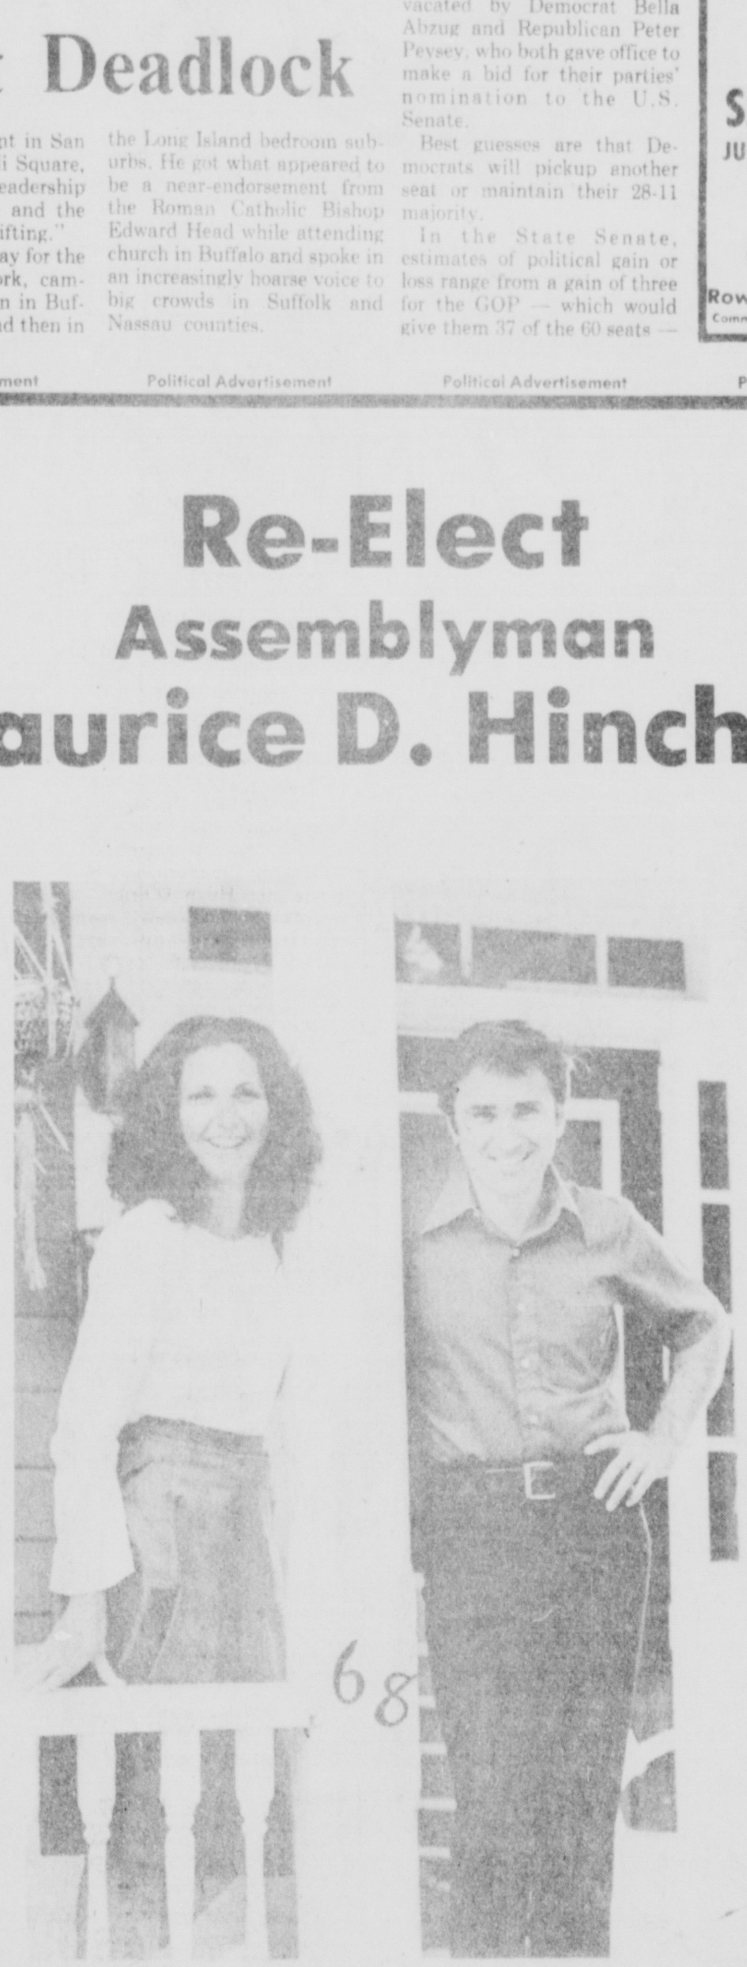

A petite woman who obviously watches her weight, Mrs. Fernandez is likely to have a full cupboard when her year of shopping is up. It's just her and husband Jack at home at 60 Cedar St. now.

"I hope you invite me to Thanksgiving dinner," McNamara told her.

"No, we're going to be out of town for that, too," she said.

Sailor Waits for Rescue after 17 Days Alone

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — Robert Gainer, unhurt and apparently unfazed despite 17 days alone and lost in the treacherous Bermuda Triangle, drifted in the Atlantic in his damaged sloop today waiting for rescuers to reach him.

A U.S. Coast Guard search plane found Gainer 625 miles east of Puerto Rico Sunday afternoon, a little less than a day after a Dutch tug reported receiving his Mayday signal.

A Coast Guard spokesman said efforts to find a nearby commercial ship to pick up Gainer had proved unsuccessful and the Coast Guard tentatively planned to send the cutter Sherman from San Juan today on the daylong rescue voyage, unless another vessel could be located.

"He's in good condition and good spirits and the boat's riding well," the spokesman said after receiving the search plane's report.

"He's (got) 200 days worth of food on board, 35 gallons of water, back up radios and a bunch of good batteries, so he should be all right.

"It's not like it was anybody out there," the spokesman said. "This guy knows what he's doing."

The spokesman said that Gainer told the tug Smitt Lloyd in his Mayday report Saturday that he didn't want to leave his boat, "but he understands and agrees now," that he will have to abandon ship.

He said Gainer told them the sloop had lost its tiller and some fittings from its mast, but that he was unhurt and healthy.

The Coast Guard said Gainer's father, Harold, had told them his son could have a new boat "if he would just come home."

Gainer, 23, of Hillside N.J., left New York harbor Oct. 2 aboard the 31-foot motor sailboat Boodles Ginny in a bid to become the first American to circumnavigate the globe alone, aboard a sloop.

On October 13, Gainer, whose last reported position was 100 miles east of Norfolk, Va., radioed his sponsors that his engine had broken down and that the Boodles Ginny had suffered some hull damage. He said he might abandon the trip and sail to Bermuda or Brazil.

No further messages were received, with Gainer apparently adrift in the Bermuda Triangle, a section of the Atlantic known for mysterious ship and plane disappearances. The point at which he was finally located is east of the triangle's southern tip.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Man Gets Meat from Mishap

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Ed Hogan has the carcasses of six buffaloes hanging in his front yard, all of them skinned and dressed with the help of neighbors during an impromptu party.

The buffaloes, owned by rancher Rex Walker, apparently wandered through an opening in a four-foot barbed wire fence onto a state highway where they were struck and killed by automobiles last week.

None of the motorists was injured, authorities said.

The State Patrol said Hogan used his flatbed truck to drive the carcasses to his home where they were dressed and hung up. Hogan said he convinced neighbors to help him by offering them free drinks.

He said the group "drank about a gallon of whiskey. Let's put it this way, we were feeling no pain when quitting time rolled around."

Walker, whose ranch adjoins Hogan's property, said there "haven't been that many buffaloes hanging up here since the Arapaho Indians left these parts."

Pittsburgh Has Cold 3 Months

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburghers have experienced three consecutive months of the coldest weather on record.

According to the National Weather Service, the average temperature in Pittsburgh for the month of October was 46.1 degrees, the lowest for any October since records began in 1871 — 105 years ago.

Similarly, July and August of this year were the coldest July and August ever recorded here.

The National Weather Service said the chance of breaking a record for any one month was one in 105.

"To do this in three of the last four months is unusual, to say the least," the weather agency said.

Also during October, three individual low temperature records were set on three different days.

MARKETBASKET

Food Prices Down 1.3% in October

KINGSTON — The price of food in Kingston dropped again last week, declining 1.3 per cent for the period ending Oct. 30.

The 41 item market basket used by the Ulster County Consumer Information Service to determine what it costs to feed a family of four in the city cost $63.62 compared to $64.43 for the previous week.

The price decline has been more or less consistent over the past eight weeks and the average food price index during that time has decreased by 3.3 per cent, from a high basket price of $66.65.

The market basket index is based on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Moderate Cost Family Food Plan and lists the various amounts of foods which should be consumed in order to provide a nutritious diet for a family of four.

Among items showing marked declines last week were grain and dairy products, fresh fruits and some canned and frozen vegetables.

Meats and fish increased slightly and beverages remained stable.

Rosenstock was unavailable for comment on the fact that the summons would be presented today, but his wife, Natalie Rosenstock told the Freeman that they would welcome hearing testimony from the persons mentioned under oath.

"If these people are willing to get on a witness stand, I'm sure it's fine with Rosenstock," she said.

Four Arrested after Brawl

MT. TREMPER — A barroom brawl in which about a dozen persons were involved about 3:30 a.m. today led to the arrest of four persons on drug and harassment charges.

Kingston State Police report that a fight broke out at the Sportsmen's Tavern, Mt. Tremper, after which participants left the scene and headed toward Woodstock.

Picked up by police patrols near the art colony were Steven A. Weinfeld, 25, of Queens. He was charged with criminal possession of a hypodermic needle and fined $200 by Shandaken Town Justice Richard Murphy. Also, Thomas A. Hayes, 22, of the Bronx, charged with criminal possession of a hypodermic needle and a controlled substance (marijuana) in the fifth degree. He was fined $500.

Henry Bilodeau, 34, of the Bronx, was charged with criminal mischief in the fourth degree and harassment. He was released on $150 bail and Michael Cherkowski, 19, of Secaucus, N. J., was charged with criminal possession of a controlled substance in the seventh degree and driving while intoxicated.

The arrests were made by Troopers Jerrold Brainard and Michael DiBattista, assisted by Saugerties Police Department and the Ulster County Sheriff's Department.

Assault Charges

A Kingston man, who allegedly assaulted a seven-month pregnant woman and two other persons in Spring Lake Trailer Park Saturday night, was arrested by Town of Ulster Police and confined to Ulster County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Wayne Menzel, 24, of 494 Wilbur Ave., Kingston was arrested on a warrant issued by Ulster Justice John Gotelli charging assault in the third degree, two counts, and harassment, one count. Two of the three persons the assaulted, including the woman sought treatment at a hospital, police said.

★★★

License Suspended

A city man, who passed a stopped school bus, was fined $25 in City Court recently. Judge Hubert Richter also suspended the driver's license for 15 days and ordered him to assist a school crossing guard for one week. Judge Richter declined to name the man.

★★★

Vehicle Rolls Over

Two Clintondale youths received multiple abrasions in a spectacular one-car accident about 1:30 a.m. today.

Preston Bacon was traveling south on Route 32 in Plattekill when he entered a curve, lost control and the vehicle rolled over. The 19-year-old driver and a passenger, Kevin Fisher, 18, were taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh.

Bacon was cited for travelling at excessive speed.

★★★

Seven Injured

Seven persons were injured in a one-car accident on Route 32 about 2 a.m. Sunday in Rosendale.

The driver, Daniel VanLeuvan, 27, of CPO Box 921, Kingston, was arrested by Ulster County Sheriff deputies and charged with driving while intoxicated and having unsafe tires.

Injured and taken to Benedictine Hospital were Van Leuvan, William Pendell Jr., John Ellsworth, Patricia Pendell, Jacqueline Bishop, Kathy Vedder and Charles Pendell.

Van Leuvan was reportedly traveling north on Route 32 when he lost control of the car and rolled it over.

★★★

Students Charged

Two students at St. Cabrini School, West Park, were charged with assault in the third degree Sunday when they allegedly attacked another pupil.

Arrested by Ulster County Sheriff Department were Donald Ennist, 16, of West Park and Santiago Acevedo, West Park. Both were arraigned before Esopus Town Justice Robert Jordan and are scheduled for reappearance Nov. 9.

★★★

Bad Check Arrest

Sheriff deputies also arrested Roger W. Lischinsky, 71 Wrentham St., Kingston on a warrant charging issuance of a bad check.

Lischinky pleaded guilty and was sentenced by Esopus Town Justice Robert Jordan to a $100 fine or 15 days in jail.

Coffey Appointed Plumbing Inspector

KINGSTON — John F. Coffey, 60, a longtime master plumber and former Democratic city alderman, has been appointed plumbing inspector by Mayor Francis R. Koenig.

Coffey assumed his new duties today, succeeding Charles J. Kelly, who retired effective Sunday after 16 years in the position.

A Kingston native, Coffey has been a master plumber for the past 27 years, operating a plumbing and heating business established by his father, Edward D. Coffey, in 1913.

The new plumbing inspector previously served as president of the Kingston Examining Board of Plumbers. He is a graduate of St. Joseph's School in Kingston, Kingston High School, St. Ann's Academy in New York City, and is a veteran of World War II.

Coffey served from 1972 through 1975 on the Kingston Common Council as Ward 1 alderman, succeeded in the last municipal election by Clarence C. Raichle, a Republican.

Coffey and his wife, the former Emily I. Smith of Kingston, reside at 23 Coffey Place. They have four children.

Sportsmen Deny Any Endorsement

KINGSTON — The county's Federated Sportsmen's Clubs have disclaimed any endorsement of political candidates and and called a recent newspaper ad supporting the GOP ticket unauthorized.

In a statement released Sunday by the Club's executive director Richard L. Clark, the group disassociated itself with an endorsement signed by Sportsmen's president Frederick G. Faerber III and stated that "in no way do the members of the Clubs support any one candidate.

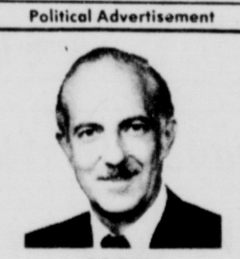

"The ad expressed the feelings of one man...who, though president, has no right to express his own personal feelings as those of the Federated Sportsmen's Club."

The advertising gave Faerber's "total support" to the entire Republican ticket, from Gerald Ford through county coroner candidate Phillip Rock.

Clark said the ad's endorsement "purported to be by the Sportsmen's Clubs was not authorized by the board of directors or members.. we...in no way wish to become a politically affiliated organization," he said.

The statement also contained Clark's apology to all candidates running in the election for the misrepresentation of the Clubs' views.

STAFF'S CHANCE

If I Were President

If I were president and had complete autonomy, I'd pick a city like Kingston and use it as an example and go to work cleaning up the country.

• First I'd put mothers and married women (whose husbands work) back in the home. Then they'd know where the kids were, a step toward curbing juvenile delinquency. (This would be a blow to Women's Lib but after the initial shock wore off, they might get to like it. There might even be fewer divorces what with homecooked meals and well organized households.)

• For three months, I would prohibit all media from reporting burglaries, murders, rapes, etcetera. Only GOOD NEWS would be announced. (If psychopaths wanted to make headlines, they'd have to do something constructive, like saving children from a burning building.)

• Welfare and unemployed people would be put to work to earn their keep. In winter: shoveling snow; in summer: cutting bushes, weeds, etcetera on city properties; year round: painting, carpentry, general maintenance in dilapidated areas. We might end up the poorest county in the country, but we'd sure be the neatest.

(Incidentally, this idea isn't so far-fetched at that. This year a co-ed group of high school junior and seniors, sponsored by American Jewish Society for Service, worked in an urban renewal area of Rochester: renovating homes by painting facades and interiors, repairing stairs and porches, mending leaking roofs, landscaping gardens, plastering old walls, scraping decayed floors. The homes belonged to social security people who were unable to make necessary repairs. The City of Rochester allocated $5,000 in building material. And Father Edmund Netter of Kingston promoted a similar project in Blue Creek, Ohio, for the people of Appalachia with a group of students from Nanuet.)

• I'd make parents pay off their children's vandalism debts even if it took a lifetime.

• Instead of building new flimsy offices, I'd put to use old vacant sturdy buildings. And instead of using old schools for storage purposes, I'd at least investigate the possibility of using them to absorb students from overcrowded facilities. Take the old No. 2 School, for instance; it was good enough to be used for a time as UCCC.

• I'd do everything I could to condemn abortion. Personally, I feel abortion is only the first step to total destruction. Next they'll want to kill all children born with mental or physical defects (what good are they?), followed by euthanasia.

Did you hear the story about the little boy playing in his father's field who look up and saw his dad trudging along with his grandfather in a basket on his back?

The grandfather was crying, and the youngster asked his father: "Where are you going with grandfather?"

The father explained, "He's old, son, no good for anything anymore. He can't do his chores, he's just an extra mouth to feed, so I'm going to throw him in the river."

"Oh," said the boy. "Bring back the basket, will you?"

"Why," asked his dad.

"So I can use it for you," said the son.

— Just for starters.

Freeman Readers Write

Budget Demands Are 'Distorted'

Dear Editor:

I must correct the outrageous distortions being put forth by the Daily Freeman in a series of grossly inaccurate editorials and news stories over the Tentative Budget of Ulster County for 1977.

In the first place, no such document exists! For some peculiar reason the Freeman has chosen to totally misinform its readers by creting the impression that I have refused to make it public. How can they claim that when the truth is that I have never at any time spoken to any member of the Daily Freeman about the release of the Tentative Budget. Additionally, how could anyone release a document that doesn't exist?

Truth and integrity in governnent is a current political issue — but shouldn't truth and integrity b the very foundation for the news? Maybe I'm wrong, but isn't that their obligation to their readers?

Had the Daily Freeman done its job I would have explained to them that we are following the provisions of Article 7 of Section 353 of the County Law. All that I have at this time are "estimates of revenues and expenditures" from each Department head along with the Finance Committee. Additionally, each of these estimates have been reviewed by the appropriate legislative committees prior to submission to my office. That's what the law calls for. Is the Daily Freeman suggesting I break the law and not follow its terms or is it simply displaying its ignorance of the legal reqiirements?

As soon as I have completed the review and investigation of these estimates, I will then and only then prepare the Tentative Budget as directed by Sections 354 and 355 of County Law, and not by the direction of the Daily Freeman.

The Daily Freeman also made a false charge when they claimed that the Budget Office traditionally withholds copies of the budget until 10 days before the public hearing. That is a clear cut display of ignorance! In 1975 the Tentative Budget was available to the public a full two weeks prior to the public hearing. This year the Tentative Budget will be available to the public a full three weeks, at least, prior to the public hearing.

We are doing our job — how about the Daily Freeman?

WILLIAM DARWAK
Budget Officer
Ulster County

(What The Freeman has asked for in the plainest language are the estimates of spending and income submitted more than a week ago to the finance committee by the department heads, and the tentative budget as soon as the finance committee has approved it. We assume the department heads have taken the trouble to put their requests in writing and that copies of these documents exist. As you know, the county Youth Bureau already has volunteered this information on its own budget and we have published it in full.

No one has suggested you should "break the law." As you well know it is not against the law to release these estimates. In fact the new Freedom of Information Act due to take effect in January will open the deliberations of legislative committees, such as the finance committee, to the public and the press next year.

All we've requested this year is to see are some numbers devised by county officials at taxpayers' expense with a view to spending the taxpayers' money.

Is this too much to ask? —Editor)

Clear Caribbean of Russians First

Bill Buckley surprised many of his conservative colleagues the other day by advocating, in a column datelined from Panama, that we relinquish our "as if" sovereign control of the Canal Zone after a pro forma demonstration that we have always had the legal right to be there.

Bill's idea is that a strong display of magnanimity on our part would be enough to keep Panama's dictator, Omar Torrijos, firmly on "our side." Meanwhile, with Panamanian good will assured, we could go ahead and make a deal extending our protection to the canal for at least another generation. A gratified Panama would be free to collect the canal tolls.

I could accept thc Buckley view on one condition: that, as a preliminary to writing a new treaty with Panama, we require the active participation of dictator Torrijos in a move to reestablish the Monroe Doctrine throughout the entire region of the Caribbean. It is not that we couldn't trust an uncoerced Panamanian government to carry its share of the load in protecting its own canal from sabotage. The point is that as long as Castro rules in Cuba with the armed support of the Soviet Union, no Panamanian governor could ever hope to preserve the integrity of the canal against Communist infiltration.

To restore the vitality of the Monroe Doctrine in the Caribbean would not necessarily demand armed intervention in Havana. Isaac Don Levine, in a notable pamphlet-length essay, "Hands Off the Panama Canal," published by Monticello Books in Washington, D.C., tells us how Fidel Castro could be brought to heel.

All the White House has to do, according to Levine, is to heed the advice of Ernest F. Lefever, a senior fellow of the Brookings Institution. Lefever would have the White House announce that "U.S. grain shipments to the Soviet Union will be suspended and the strategic arms talks broken off until Moscow withdraws its Cuban expeditionary force from Angola." To which Sen. John V. Tunney of California has surprisingly added the proviso that no more technology shall go to Russia "unless she withdraws her men and arms from overseas lands." The "overseas lands" would include Cuba itself.

As a further bit of pressure on the Communists, Levine insists that the grain and technology embargoes should be accompanied by a reenactment of the Lodge Resolution that the U.S. "could not see without grave concern the possession" in the Americas of any harbor "or other place by any corporation or association which has such a relation to another government, not American, as to give that government practical power for national purposes."

The Lodge Resolution was formulated originally to keep a Japanese consortium from buying a large tract of land on Magdalena Bay at the southwestern coast of Lower (Baja) California. Its resurrection would be sufficient to keep Torrijos from allowing any Castroite or Soviet dummy corporation to move into Panama.

Fidel Castro would kick like a steer before agreeing to bring his Angola foreign legion home and giving up his dependence on Soviet arms. But the White House could put it up to Torrijos to engage the whole of Latin America in a crusade to clip Castro's claws in exchange for a new treaty on the Panama Canal.

With Panama's self-interest involved in getting the Russians out of the Western Hemisphere, the atmosphere in the United Nations would be changed overnight. The west coast Latin American nations which have a special interest in the Panama Canal tolls might want some say on a rate-setting formula for the future. But a hemispheric united front in defense of the Monroe Doctrine and the Lodge Resolution (sometimes called the Lodge Corollary) would probably be not too difficult to achieve if both Washington and Panama could agree on a deal calculated to bring an end to Soviet imperialism in the Caribbean.

One can agree with Bill Buckley on the healing power of magnanimity. But first things first: Get Brezhnev out of the Western Hemisphere, and Castro out of the business of supplying mercenaries for foreign wars, before we write a new Panama Canal treaty.

Voters' Anger Brought Apathy

The campaign is over. It dies shuddering and shouting. Now the people speak. It represents the last best voice of democracy, but it is a weak voice. Millions of voters remain home. The cadres of activists on one side or the other will determine the kind of government we deserve.

It isn't healthy. A century and more have come and gone since the last time the people were this angry. Herman Melville, writing of the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, said:

"There is sobbing of the strong,
And a pall upon the land;
But the people in their weeping
Bare the iron hand:
Beware the people weeping
When they bare the iron hand."

Anger should bring votes. This time it brought apathy. They refused to bare the iron hand. I traveled from New York to Massachusetts to California to Florida to Nevada to the Middle West and back again. I spoke to bellmen, cops, teachers, salesmen, editors, sports figures, commentators, town councilmen, housewives, students - they were angry.

They appeared to be sickened by some nameless colossus called Washington. The words "politician" and "prostitute" became synonymous. "I am not voting," they said. "My vote doesn't mean a damn thing." Multiply these voices by millions and millions and you learn that the balance of power remained silent.

The campaign itself was shoddy. The nominees were, at times, venomous with invective. They slashed at each other as though mutual indictments would win votes. They promised and promised as though we had not been down that road before.

No matter which man wins, he had better do something to restore our faith in the Presidency, the Congress and the Courts. One was cute with candor, the small-town cherub who decries Washington but wants to go there. The other did not wish to acknowledge that he had been appointed by Richard Nixon, the only president to accept a pardon without acknowledging the crime.

Mr. Ford brayed that he executed his duties by veto. Whatever was wrong with us and our nation was the fault of a Democratic Congress. On the other hand, he begged us not to send Mr. Carter to the White House because he would be a Democratic president who might get along with a Democratic Congress.

Little by little, we learned less and less. They debated. The press faulted the President because he had a habit of standing on his tongue. There is nothing in the Constitution which says that a president must be a first-class orator.

In all the years Mr. Ford was in Congress, no one accused him of being an intellectual. It was Thomas O'Neill (D-Mass.) who said he cherished Ford's friendship over the years, but stated that one has to know Jerry well to appreciate how little he knows.

It was, at best, a campaign of mistakes. Mr. Carter, who bragged about being unknown until the salty spring days of the primaries, sat for a long heart-to-heart talk with a salacious magazine, Playboy.

No one asked him to use a gutter word like "screw." He did it. They quoted it. He abased himself. Suspicion of the man deepened as he explained and reexplained how he became a reborn Christian.

Some of what Carter said was intended as sarcasm. The press quoted it straight. For a time, the reporters on both planes seemed determined to tear the candidates down. They sensed the disenchantment of the people and tossed their oratorical curves at press conferences.

Jobs. Inflation. Peace. Ford said he had them under control. Carter smiled his enigmatic grin and said he could give us more jobs, lower inflation and a continued peace. Women almost ruined his rallies with signs crying for anti-abortion laws.

It might have been a better campaign with Ronald Reagan. Our apathy might have been stirred by his firm position on issues. Who knows? If we had him we might also have had Hubert Humphrey as the other nominee. The Senator would, as events revealed, have been a weak reed indeed.

Somewhere near San Clemente I see a man sitting in front of a television set. He watches the candidates and listens to the mocking words of pseudo-grandeur. He laughs heartily. That man, I suspect, hasn't laughed in a long, long time. . .

Coke And Pepsi Vie For Election

WASHINGTON — The voting on Tuesday will settle not only whether Gerald Ford or Jimmy Carter will occupy the White House but whether Pepsi Cola or Coca Cola will be the most favored beverage for the next four years.

Not that the election will change the drinking habits of many Americans. But it could determine whether the Russians must continue to satisfy their cola thirst with Pepsis or whether they will be given a chance to try Cokes.

There is even a tantalizing possibility that 800 million Chinese may start guzzling the cola with the right political connections. The cola habit might also spread to Cuba in the event of an accommodation with Fidel Castro.

Pepsi's Donald Kendall has had special entree to the White House during the Republican occupancy. He had the foresight in the 1960s to help set up Richard Nixon in a . lucrative law practice in New York City.

After Nixon became President, he returned the favor by appointing Kendall as the top American on the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Trade and Economic Council — a position Kendall used to introduce Pepsis to Russia. He pushed Pepsis so aggressively, in fact, that it antagonized members of Henry Kissinger's staff.

They drafted a bitter memo and circulated it privately within government circles. The memo charges that Kendall "exploited his friendship with Nixon to further his international business interests.

"One example of this exploitation is in the delicate, controversial area of U.S.-Soviet trade. Kendall used his friendship with Nixon to obtain the position of U.S. co-chairman of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Trade and Fconomic Council ... It has become so much a personal tool of Kendall's that Department of Commerce people refer to it as Kendall's Council."

Despite this undercover opposition, Kendall nanaged to survive Watergate and to achieve a close relationship with President Ford.

Coke's John Paul Austin, on the other hand, has the inside track with Jimmy Carter. By accident of geography, Coca Cola headquarters happens to be located in Atlanta where Carter presided as govcrnor of Georgia.

It was Austin's pleasure to provide free Cokes for Carter's political barbecues, to help underwrite the governor's Prayer Breakfast and to host at least one luncheon for the visiting governor from Pernambuco.

Perhaps encouraged by Carter's improved politicai fortunes, Austin has made three trips to Russia to explain the capitalist principle of competition to the Soviets. They, in turn, have been mightily impressed by Coke's connections with Carter. They have questioned members of the Coke delegation closely about the enigmatic Carter.

Austin offered to provide Cokes for the 1990 Olympics in Moscow if the Soviets would open their country to competition between the two rival colas. This possibility brought Kendall on a flying trip to Russia a few weeks ago.

He played it cool. Afterward, the U.S. embassy reported to the State Dept.: "In call on Ambassador, Kendall mentioned that Coca Cola is seeking Soviet authorization to sell its product at 1980 Olympic Games and had already offered $10 million for such rights, as contrasted with $3 million offered in Montreal.

"He noted that Soviet authorization of sale by Coca Cola would apply only to Olympic Games," continued the confidential cable. "Kendall stated he was not disturbed by this development and was not interested in selling Pepsi Cola at the Olympics. He said that Pepsico was interested in maintaining its longterm position in the U.S.S.R. and felt confident thet it would do so."

Kendall has a barter deal with the Soviets; he trades Pepsi Cola for vodka. The U.S. embassy offered the State Dept. this additional, confidential report:

"Kendall told us that present trends indicate volume of vodka imports into U.S. could support the early construction of a total of 25 Pepsi Cola bottling plants in the U.S.S.R. He said his longterm goal was 51 plants."

A Pepsi spokesman said the State Dept. cable was wrong; he said the company has no plans bcyond constructing five Pepsi plants in the Soviet Union. He also disputed the derogatory State Dept. memo; he said Kendall had worked unselfishly for the best interests of the United States on the trade council.

A Coca Cola spokesman said either Kendall or the cable was wrong; he said the offer to provide Cokes for the Olympics was between $3 million and $5 million, not $10 million.

Meanwhile, Austin is trying to introduce "the real thing" to Russia and Kendall is trying to keep it out. This great cola battle may be decided, indirectly, by the voters on Tuesday.

Footnote: Both Kendall and Austin have made an exploratory trip to the Chinese mainland. Both came back convinced that China isn't yet ready for colas. But both men are eager to introduce their favorite beverage to China, perhaps on a limited basis at first as a refreshment for tourists.

Kendall is ahead of Austin, according to State Dept. sources, in the backstage maneuverings to follow up a possible detente with Cuba.

Research Sub Retrieves from Ocean Floor

Navy Recovers Sunken Secret Missile

LONDON (UPI) — An American research submarine recovered a supersecret Phoenix missile from the bottom of the Atlantic, ending fears the Soviet Union might seize one of the West's most sophisticated and deadly weapons.

The U.S. Navy announced Sunday that a salvage fleet battled heaving seas and icy waters to secure the $371,000 Phoenix missile Saturday, but said it still had not recovered the Tomcat F14 plane that carried the missile.

It said the recovery task force was studying new plans to salvage the warplane, which has been located on the ocean floor about 100 miles north of Scotland's Orkney Islands.

The plane toppled from the deck of the aircraft carrier USS John F. Kennedy Sept. 14 during NATO exercises. The missile apparently jarred loose from the Tomcat's wing.

Soviet spy ships shadowing the NATO exercise witnessed the plane's plunge into the sea, and there were fears that Soviet recovery vessels might try to pull it out first and learn the details of one of America's most secret weapons.

The nuclear-powered research submarine NR1 seized the 13-foot missile with a grappling arm and hauled it from 1,900 feet of water to the surface. Divers then attached straps to allow it to be hauled aboard.

"The missile was reported intact with only light damage," the Navy announcement said.

Two earlier attempts to lift the plane failed when heavy seas snapped cables being used to pull it to the surface.

Waves as high as 20 feet hampered the recovery of plane and missile. Currents had shifted the aircraft about 3 miles from where it originally sank.

The Phoenix is one of the world's most sophisticated and deadly mobile weapons systems. It enables the F14 to track as many as 24 targets at the same time and to fire missiles at as many as six within the space of a few seconds. In tests, it has scored kills on targets up to 110 miles from launch point.

It is the only deployed U.S aircraft believed capable of matching the Mach3 Soviet Foxbat, one of which fell into Western hands when a Russian pilot defected to Japan last month.

Chrysler, UAW Hope To Beat Strike Date

DETROIT (UPI) — Despite "very uneventful" weekend bargaining sessions, United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corp. negotiators hoped to wrap up details of a new contract for 118,000 U.S. and Canadian workers by Friday's strike deadline.

The bargaining teams met for nine hours on Saturday and again for five hours Sunday. A meeting planned to start this morning could last into the late evening and lengthy sessions will be the rule in the remaining five days, UAW Vice President Douglas A. Fraser said.

While reporting some "minor progress," Fraser, head of the union bargaining team, said none of the major contract issues have been resolved. He said the union has met "resistance" in four areas — seniority, grievance procedures, representation and skilled trades. He also said discussion on a controversial fifth issue — demoting supervisors into union jobs during slack sales periods — hasn't yet been discussed.

"But if we can begin to bring the issues into focus starting today, we'll have plenty of time to avoid a strike," Fraser said.

A walkout by Chrysler workers at 6 p.m. Friday would be the second auto industry strike this year. Workers at Ford Motor Co. plants were off the job for 28 days before a contract, which set the pattern for the industry, was agreed.

But Fraser says both sides at Chrysler agree "you can't just take the Ford settlement and lay it on Chrysler."

The major difference is the 9,000 salaried workers the union bargains for at Chrysler. It is the only major group of auto industry white-collar workers represented by the UAW.

The salaried workers could strike even if there is agreement on a national contract for the 109,000 production workers and their walkout could curtail Chrysler operations in a week.

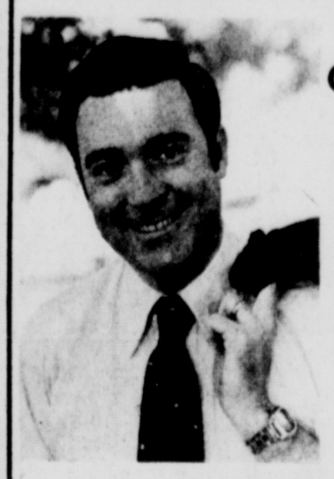

Local strikes could plague Chrysler even if a national agreement is reached, since only four of 69 production bargaining units and 12 of 136 salaried units have settled local issues.

Can A Juror Object?

Death Penalty Riddle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court upheld the death penalty last July. Now it faces a ruling on whether conscientious objectors to capital punishment can be excluded from juries.

A major factor in the death ruling was allowing some jury discretion, which the plurality called "a link between contemporary community values and the penal system."

Opponents of the death penalty now want the justices to rule whether the link to community values is broken when those who object to capital punishment are excluded from the jury.

The question is raised by a half-dozen capital punishment appeals from Florida and Georgia. The court has yet to act on any of them and, until it does, some persons sentenced to death may be able to stay their executions.

Not all Death Row inmates would be aided by a favorable ruling, since in many cases no prospective jurors had reservations about the death penalty. But some could be spared.

The death penalty laws of Florida, Georgia and Texas were upheld because they gave a jury the power to decide, within statutory guidelines, whether a crime was so aggravated the penalty should be death.

The plurality opinion by Justices Potter Stewart, Louis F. Powell Jr. and John Paul Stevens quoted from a 1968 decision limiting exclusion from juries of persons with reservations about capital punishment.

It said: "Jury sentencing has been considered desirable in capital cases in order 'to maintain a link between contemporary community values and the penal system' — a link without which the determination of punishment could hardly reflect 'the evolving standards of decency that mark the progress of a maturing society.'"

Much of that language comes from Witherspoon v. Illinois. In that case, the court said people who merely express reservations about the death penalty cannot be excluded from jury service unless they reveal stronger scruples which would prevent them from convicting a defendant no matter how much evidence of guilt.

The Legal Defense Fund of the NAACP is banking on that decision, which came after the last execution in this country, to save the lives of some of the nearly 200 persons on death rows in Florida, Georgia and Texas alone.

It argues that in many cases trial courts did not sufficiently question jurors to determine how deep were their feelings against the death penalty.

Since various polls show opposition to the death penalty ranges from 40 to 60 per cent of the population, the LDF argues that excluding abolitionists from juries breaks the community link to the penal system, which Witherspoon found so vital.

It's Picnic Day in The Cities Of The Dead in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Each year on this day, south Louisiana families pack a picnic lunch, toss a few garden tools in the back of the stationwagon and bundle up the children for a visit to the ancestrial burial ground.

Catholics today celebrate All Saints Day and in South Louisiana families celebrate the religious holiday by visiting family crypts to trim grass plots, plant bulbs for spring flowers and scrub gravestones.

The Orleans Archdiocese, which operates many of New Orleans' "Cities of the Dead" cemeteries, opens the graveyards for extended hours on All Saints' Day, a feast day to honor all saints, and All Souls' Day Tuesday, a day of prayer for the souls of the dead.

The yearly ritual often means a visit with the family whose tomb is "next door."

"The care and maintenance of individual plots and tombs is the responsibility of the family, which purchased or inherited the burial rights," said the Rev. Raymond A. Wegmann, director of the archdiocesan cemeteries.

Most old New Orleans' families own above-ground mausoleums resembling miniature townhouses, where their ancestors are entombed and where present family members someday will be buried.

The tombs, some over six feet high, can accommodate a half dozen bodies or more. The remains eventually decay making room for the entombment of the next generation.

But Wegmann said changes in society are threatening the traditional New Orleans family vaults.

"The high mobility of our society and the fact that family lines do die out are but two of the reasons which cause burial plots and tombs to be abandoned," he said.

Several months ago, the city building inspector condemned sections of historic St. Louis Cemetery No. 2. Inspector Ed Robin said sections of wall vaults had crumbled, exposing human remains. He ordered the archdiocese to repair the walls or tear them down.

Vietnam Vets Agree to Leave Tunney's Office

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Twelve Vietnam veterans, who took over the field offices of Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., one week ago, promised to leave today to avoid undue influence on Tuesday's Senate election.

When the veterans entered the offices they vowed to stay until all presidential candidates met with them to discuss their complaints about the treatment of veterans.

A spokesman said Democrat Jimmy Carter sent the group a four-page memo outlining his stand on veterans affairs and related issues, but all efforts to reach President Ford had been rebuffed.

He said the veterans would leave today because they did not want to "prejudice the people's vote" in the close Senate race between Tunney and Republican challenger S.I. Hayakawa, but said they would not give up their fight for better veterans benefits.

"We feel we must set up some kind of mechanism to deal with the complaints of veterans of all eras," Ron Blitzer added, "and we feel there should be a long-term study of the neglect by government agencies of the Vietnam veteran."

Right-Wing Christians Boycott Lebanon Talks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian rightists have boycotted talks aimed at carrying out the latest Lebanese peace plan, further straining the already wobbly cease-fire.

But intermediaries, including a ranking American diplomat and an Arab League envoy, were expected to begin new efforts to make sure the 11-dayold truce does not collapse like the 54 before it.

At least 18 persons were killed in the 24-hour period ending late Sunday, most during clashes in the capital.

There were no reports of fighting in other areas but both leftists and rightists have ignored appeals to begin withdrawing their troops to positions held before the war started in April 1975, as the Arab peace plan proposed.

Maj. Gen Mohammed Hassan Ghoneim, Egyptian head of the 2,300 peace-keeping troops already in Lebanon, called a meeting of combatants Sunday to discuss the reopening of major roads, the creation of buffer zones and the deployment of peacekeeping troops.

But the meeting failed to take place, mainly because of the rightists' insistence that President Elias Sarkis, not Ghoneim, should preside.

The rightist Amsheet Radio said U.S. diplomat George Lane soon will meet with both Moslem leftists and Christian rightists in an Americansponsored drive to bring the warring factions together.

Such contacts would mark the first time an American diplomat has ventured across Beirut's confrontation lines since the murder of U.S. Ambassador Francis E. Meloy last July.

Sarkis contacted Arab League Secretary General Mahmoud Riad during the weekend to speed up formation of the proposed 30,000-member peacekeeping force, which was seen by all sides as crucial in heading off an escalation of violence. There was still no indication when it would arrive.

Rightists said Sarkis has drawn up a peace timetable for Lebanon he hopes to put into effect when he takes command of the peace force.

Exxon Hit for Ad Deriding the Sun

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two members of Congress say that advertisements about solar energy purchased by Exxon, the world's largest oil company, are so pessimistic they overlook the advantages of sun power.

The ad in question, "Exxon Answers Questions about One of the Newest Sources of Energy under the Sun — the Sun!," said solar heating systems cost between $8,000 to $20,000, solar electricity is expensive and the sun may not be a major energy source until the next century.

Although Exxon is primarily an oil company, the firm also has done pioneering work in such solar energy areas as using electricity produced by the sun to run railroad crossing lights. The ad being criticized said Exxon was working to bring the price of solar energy down.

"Could it be that Exxon hopes that solar energy stays under wraps until the world's fossil fuel markets are exhausted," asked Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, D-N.Y., and Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., both enthusiastic about solar energy as a cheap, nonpolluting replacement for coal and oil heat.

In a letter to Exxon president H.C. Kauffmann, released Saturday, they said: "We feel that Exxon has misinformed the public about the current status of solar energy and the promises it holds for our nation. The answers to questions posed by Exxon in its ad are riddled with innaccurate statistics and pessimistic projections about solar power.

"Several solar technologies are presently available to consumers, and through an aggressive national commitment, solar energy could make a significant contribution to our energy supply."

Welfare Law Is Protested

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Community Council of Greater New York has asked the city to help get a state law which eliminates thousands of city residents from the welfare rolls declared unconstitutional.

Bernard M. Shiffman, the council's executive director, sent a telegram to Mayor Abraham Beame asking the city to participate as a "friend of the court" in a planned State Supreme Court lawsuit against the State Department of Social Services.

The 1976 law in question, which was designed to trim soaring welfare costs, strikes at home relief recipients under 21 not living with parents or "legally responsible relatives."

The law would eliminate 11,000 people from welfare rolls, including about 7,000 city residents.

Shiffman said that Community Action for Legal Services attorneys are scheduled to go into court on Wednesday to seek a postponement in the Nov. 8 cut-off.

He urged city and state officials to "fully explore every possible alternative to the complete cut-off of clients, including the provision of emergency assistance payments to them."

Can You Get Flu at Communion?

NEEDHAM, Mass. (UPI) — Alice and John Brennan are worried about the chance of getting either A-Victoria or swine flu through the fingers of their parish priest, and they want the Roman Catholic Church to do something about it.

The Brennans are asking the church to let America's 20 million Catholics receive communion wafers in their hands — as is the case in most European churches — rather than from the hands of their priests.

The communion-in-hand question, at the Brennan's request, will be up for consideration when the National Conference of Catholic Bishops meet in Nov. 8-11 in Washington, D.C.

Two-thirds of the bishops must vote for the change before permission may be sought from the Vatican.

The bishops' Office of Health Affairs has agreed with the contention wafers doled out by priests could pose a health threat, according to Rev. Thomas Krosnicki, associate director of the Bishops' Committee on the Liturgy.

John Brennan, a special assistant to the director of the Forsyth Research Institute in Boston, enlisted the aid of Dr. Louis Weinstein, a Harvard medical professor and world authority on infectious diseases.

"I agree competely with Mr. Brennan," Dr. Weinstein wrote the bishops.

"Since as the priest goes from person to person placing a wafer on the tongue, he contaminates his fingers with saliva," said Weinstein, who is chief of infectious diseases at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

"Because it is well known that he influenza virus is present in the upper respiratory tract, this procedure is fraught with the danger of passing the virus from a person who has the disease to a number of persons who do not yet have the infection."

The Federation of diocesan Liturgical Commissions has already voted to ask the U.S. bishops to allow self-serve communion for religious purposes. The federation notes it is no less reverent and would help "restore to the adult Christian a sense of dignity, maturity and the holiness of his entire being."

Says Talks Have Bogged Down

Ian Smith Will Leave Conference in Geneva

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith, fearing the conference on his country's future may bog down to "twiddling our thumbs," plans to return to Salisbury Wednesday until the pace of the talks picks up, according to Rhodesian sources.

The sources said Sunday Smith would leave Foreign Minister Pieter van der Byl and Lands and Natural Resources Minister Mark Partridge in charge of a smaller white delegation but would be ready to return whenever necessary.

"I've got the feeling for the next week or so we may be sitting here twiddling our thumbs," Smith said.

The Rhodesia conference — which opened Thursday — fragmented into hotel rooms and lobbies during the weekend while British Chairman Ivor Richard tried to get participants back to the conference table with something substantial to talk about.

Black delegations caucused among themselves after meetings with Richard. Against a background of heightened violence in Rhodesia, hopes for quick progress toward a peaceful solution in Geneva were fading.

"No material progress has been made so far," Ndabaningi Sithole, leader of one of the four black delegations, said after conferring with Richard Sunday. "Things are going too slowly for my liking."

William Schaufele, the U.S. assistant secretary of state for African affairs, kept a deliberately low profile in his selfstyled role as "observer."

No details of his activities were available and there was no indication he had actually met any of the delegations since he arrived Saturday.

Black delegates said they had nothing to discuss with Schaufele, since they have rejected in advance the proposals put forth by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

These include majority rule in two years preceded by an interim government, in which the defense and police ministries remain in white hands.

Smith says he is prepared to allow a transfer of power from the less than 300,000 whites to more than six million blacks, but only on the basis of the Kissinger package.

The black delegations demand majority rule within one year at the most, and reject the concept of police and defense posts remaining in white hands.

Criminal Hard of Hearing

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (UPI) — The Immigration and Naturalization Service is looking for a place to hold a deportation hearing involving an alleged World War II war criminal.

The hearing had been set for a Common Pleas courtroom, but fears of demonstrations and massive news coverage led to withdrawal of the space, according to Chief Judge Roman J. Lexton.

He said Saturday the hearings could cause disruption of the Police Department and other courts in the same building as the proposed hearings on deporting Bruno Kaminskas of Hartford.

Kaminskas is accused by the Justice Department Oct. 13 of taking part in the mass shooting of 600 Jews and 60 children during the war.

Because the hearing is a federal matter, Lexton advised the INS to find a federal facility in which to hold the hearing.

Lexton said he gave routine approval to INS for use of the courtroom because he was not told the nature of the proceeding. He expected it would last two or three days.

"Later, I learned this was a major deportation hearings involving a man who had been accused of participating in atrocities in Lithuania, and further that the hearing would probably take 30 days or more," Lexton said.

A large number of persons of Lithuanian heritage live here.

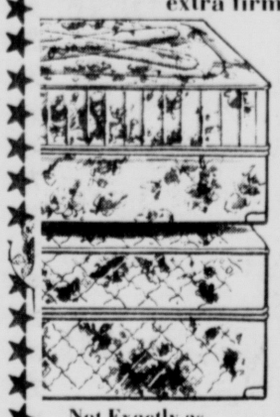

"If things developed into quite a controversy, it would mean providing considerable security, all on a case in which the city had no jurisdiction," said Lexton.

Vandals Hit Train

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The Bicentennial American Freedom Train made it through 124 cities without any major vandalism — until it reached Raleigh.

Authorities Sunday reported someone stole a brass gate from the rear car early Saturday while the train was parked at the state fair grounds.

"We've gone through some really bad areas," said John Manning, who handles security for the train, "and we've never suffered any vandalism. A lot of people respect the train, you know."

The train arrived in Raleigh Thursday evening and authorities speculated the gate, on which a Bicentennial plague was mounted, was taken sometime early Saturday.

Manning estimated the gate actually cost about $1,000, but was irreplacable. He said President Ford is shown standing behind the gate in a film made when the train was dedicated Dec. 19, 1974.

Raleigh police said there were no suspects in the case.

Ford and City at Odds

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., says the Ford administration has indicated it might declare New York City ineligible for $79 million in federal aid needed to keep transit fares from rising.

The congresswoman, who is a member of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee, said Saturday the Urban Mass Transportation Administration is now "considering refusing us critical operating money to which we are legally entitled."

The UMTA is using "a spurious calculation that even though this city and this state pour more subsidies into its transportation system than any others, it has reduced its commitment enough to disqualify it for this federal entitlement," she said.

Ms. Abzug said the UMTA contends the city's decision this year to cut $16.5 million from the reduced student fare program will bring the level of support below the so-called "maintenance of effort requirement."

This "would plunge New York City into a fare crisis after the presidential election," she said, noting Ford had tried to win votes in the state by announcing earlier this week a $70 million grant for subway construction.

Nursing Homes Refuse

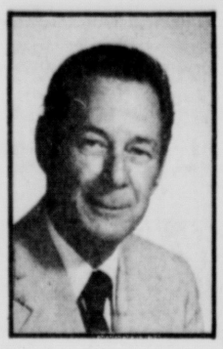

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Metropolitan New York Nursing Home Association says its 95 members will withdraw from the state Medicaid program on Dec. 10 unless the state revamps the new reimbursement rates.

The 95 facilities serve about 18,000 patients in the metropolitan area.

Last week, the association voted to refuse admission to Medicaid patients on Nov. 10 because it said new Medicaid reimbursement rates will force the homes to reduce services to "dangerous levels."

An association spokesman said Saturday the association wants the state reimbursement rates recomputed to include patient care factors and "effective relief from financially irresponsible dictates from the state health department."

Boy on Bicycle Killed Escaping from A Dog

SCHUYLER, N.Y. (UPI) — An 11-year-old Utica boy was killed Sunday when his Utica suburb, state police said.

Troopers said it took them bike veered into the path of an oncoming car as he tried to escape a menacing dog in this seven hours to learn the identity of the victim, Mark Nelson, because he had no identification on him and was not recognized in the neighborhood where he was struck.

They said the boy was riding his bicycle along State Route 5 when the accident occurred. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Mohawk Valley General Hospital in Ilion. The driver of the car was not charged, troopers said.

Nelson lived at 303 Pelletieri Ave.

Few Turnout in Jersey

Fears about Swine Flu Shots

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — New Jersey's first swine flu vaccination program ended in four northern counties over the weekend, with only some 20 per cent of 500,000 eligible residents taking advantage of inoculations.

State Health Department officials attributed the low turnout to apparent fears over the safety of the program, touched off by the reports of several elderly persons who died following inoculation in other states.

In Morris, Sussex, Passaic and Warren counties which form Region 1, the officials said, only 78,933 residents were immunized in clinics since the program started on Oct. 20.

"Just about everyone we talked to has indicated they were afraid of the vaccine," a Paterson health officer, John Callahan, said Sunday.

"Publicity on the three people who died in Pennsyvalnia sounded the death knell."

But Fred Hebeler, special deputy commissioner of the health department, predicted that the number of persons receiving flu shots would increase as the program moves to the second group of counties — Essex and Bergen — on Tuesday.

"I believe people are seeing the clinics are being managed effectively, that there are no longer long waits, that we are providing for the comfort of the elderly and no one is having adverse reaction," Callahan said.

A Try to Ban Sex Text

STOWE, Vt. (UPI) — A group of parents headed by a Baptist minister have joined forces in an attempt to stop a controversial sex education course approved by the school board for Stowe High School students.

The course, entitled, "Human Sexuality" consists of reading material and films dealing with human sexual behaivor and is taught by Carol Georges, the school nurse.

Rev. Joseph Murphy said Sunday many of the materials are "lewd and pornographic."

Stowe School Board Chairman David Partridge said, however, most of the material Rev. Murphy was referring to has been removed from the course.

Schools Supt. Albert Hurley said the course was designed for one semester and "no decision" has been made whether to continue it.

"While there are a number of people critical of the course, I think you will find that most were critical of the proposed material rather than the idea behind the course itself," Hurley said.

Man Shot Over Club Admittance

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Russell Gillespie, 19, was shot and killed Sunday when he and five friends, all dressed in Halloween costumes, attempted to enter a club in the city's Kensington district.

Gillespie died in a hospital shortly after he was found bleeding from a gunshot wound of the chest on a sidewalk outside the Bubble Club.

Police arrested Edward Powers, 32, a bartender at the club, and charged him with murder.

Police said a fight ensued after Gillespie and his friends were denied entrance to the club. Powers, who took part in the melee, returned to the club, got a handgun and fired several shots into the group, striking Gillespie, police said.

Houdini Absent At An Anniversary Seance

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT. (UPI) — For the eighth time a seance was held here on the 50th anniversary of the death of famed magician Harry Houdini. For the eighth time, Houdini failed to make his presence known.

The great escape artist died Oct. 31, 1926, and Halloween eve has become the traditional time to try to contact him through spiritual means.

Surrounded by genuine Houdini artifacts, luminaries from the world of magic and others attempted to contact him Saturday night at the museum bearing his name in this resort city. It was reportedly one of many seances being held around the world.

A local medium, who bills herself as the White Witch of Niagara, sat down with 11 guests. A 13th chair was left vacant for Harry Houdini.

They chatted for 35 minutes in a brightly lit room, but in the end nothing happened — no sign or manifestation of any kind.

Before his death, Houdini had worked out a system with his friend, Joseph Dunninger, the famous mentalist entertainer, to insure against fakery in attempts to communicate with him after his death.

Houdini left a coded message with Dunninger, saying that after he died he would try to communicate with his old friend in code. This item, preserved in the museum after Dunninger's death last year, was on the seance table.

Also on the table were four sets of handcuffs from celebrated Houdini escapes, the needle trick and other items aimed at evoking a response from beyond the grave.

Among those joining the "White Witch," Joanna Honsberger, were Dunninger's widow and Walter Gibson, a friend of Houdini and creater of the old radio series, "The Shadow," and Milbourne Christopher, a biographer of Houdini and a magician himself.

It was the eighth seance held here.

During the last one, held two years ago, a vase toppled from a shelf and several books fell. But there was some skepticism about what caused the incidents.

As for Saturday night's seance, Christopher wasn't too disappointed.

"As far as I'm concerned," he said, "Houdini never went away."

Onteora Hearing On Nov. 10

BOICEVILLE — The Onteora Board of Education will hold a public hearing Wednesday, Nov. 10, in the high school in Boiceville to discuss changing the current method of selecting school board members.

Board members now are elected for three year terms for a specific seat on the board. The proposed change would have board candidates running at-large.

"Editorial of the Air"

Delivered October 29, 1976

By Harry M. Thaver

To represent Ulster County in the New York State Assembly for the years of 1977 and 1978, we sincerely endorse Maurice Rosenstock, the Republican Candidate. Mr. Rosenstock has a very excellent background. He graduated from law school, practiced law briefly, he was a Justice of the Peace for four years in the Town of Wawarsing and he has been a successful businessman for many, many years. At the present time he has clothing factories in Ellenville and Hudson, New York.

One thing Mr. Rosenstock has made very clear is that he recognizes the needs of businesmen in this area as well as he recognizes the needs of the average citizen and if elected, we are confident that Mr. Rosenstock will not be simply a welfare pusher but will be indeed dedicated to giving his full abilities to the average citizen of course, but also the businessman who means so much to the average citizen.

Mr. Rosenstock is in favor of an entire reform for the entire property tax structure to ease the burden on the home owners. He particularly feels that Ulster County home owners need relief and need it quickly. Mr. Rosenstock believes that a portion of the tax burden for each property owner should be shifted to a graduating income tax. The Republican candidate for the Assembly further believes that property taxes for Senior Citizens should be frozen at the point when they become Senior Citizens.

It is Mr. Rosenstock's judgement that we are faced with the greatest threat from criminal elements in our nation's history. We could not agree with him more on this particular point. Mr. Rosenstock believes it is no time to waver or to cower. The Republican candidate advocates the Death Penalty for murder and for kidnapping. He also advocates mandatory prison sentence for anyone found guilty of committing a crime with a gun. This is another example of where our past Legislators have ignored the viciousness of crime today and we need many people in Albany with views similar to Mr. Rosenstock's on the matter of crime and its control.

It is Mr. Rosenstock's contention that everyone but the rich is being hurt by the high cost of government and that wage earners have less money for essentials than every before in the past. It is his contention that school budgets are being voted down as a consequence of the high cost of government and that the stability of local governments are in jeopardy also because of this factor. Mr. Rosenstock points out that 623 corporations have left New York State since 1975, taking with them a quarter of million jobs.

We ask the voters of Ulster County to elect Maurice Rosenstock to the New York State Assembly on November 2. We are confident it will be to their best interests and benefits.

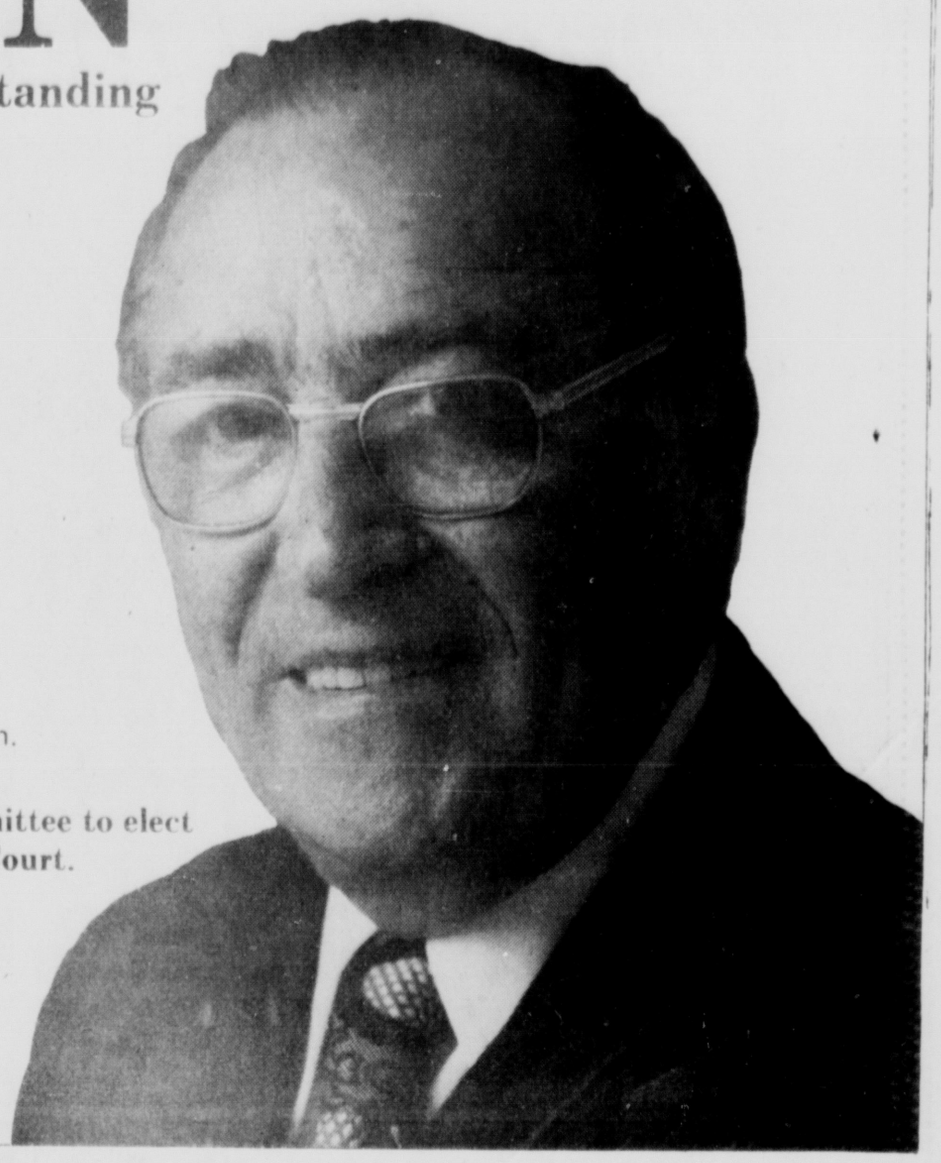

This has been a WGHQ Editorial of the Air, by Harry Thaver.

One final thought:

"It is not enough for anyone to say 'trust me.'

Trust is not having to guess what a candidate means.

Trust is not being all things to all people, but being the same thing to all people.

Trust is leveling with the people before the election about what you're going to do after the election.

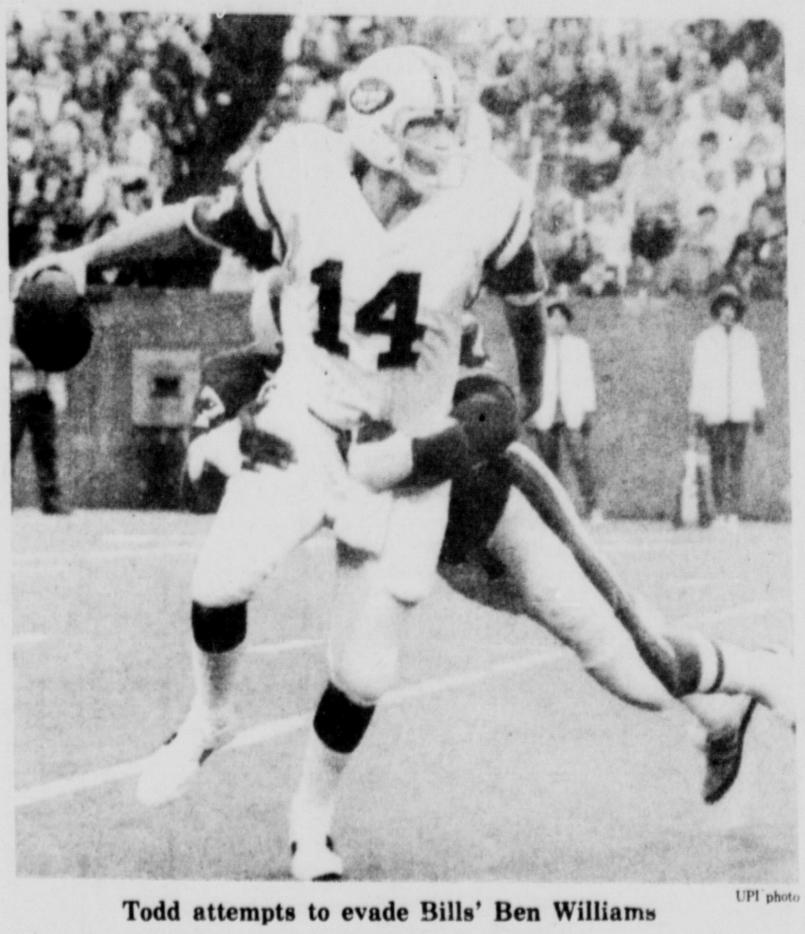

Trust is saying plainly and simply what you mean—and meaning what you say.

Trust must be earned."

Todd attempts to evade Bills' Ben Williams

Todd's Debut Was A Laugher

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — Richard Todd was laughing but Gary Marangi wasn't in a humorous mood.

Todd and Marangi both made the first regular-season starts of their pro football careers Sunday and Todd wound up on top as the New York Jets held on for a 19-14 victory over the Buffalo Bills.

"I threw a touchdown, anyway," Todd said laughing. "That was a pitiful pass, though, but it was there."

Todd lobbed a 20-yard touchdown pass to David Knight in the second quarter as the Jets got off to a 7-0 lead. Steve Poole ran six yards for a touchdown after linebacker Larry Keller blocked a Marv Bateman punt to put the Jets up 13-0.

"It had to be a tough one for Buffalo, but boy, it sure is a good one for us," said Jets' Coach Lou Holtz. His club is 2-6 on the season with both wins coming against the Bills, who also dropped to 2-6 in the AFC East.

"Todd did an outstanding job, but he really didn't throw the ball as well as he can in the wind," Holtz said of the rookie who started in place of the injured Joe Namath. "He's going to benefit from this."

The Jets were up 16-0 at halftime after a 21-yard field goal by Pat Leahy, and Marangi, the Bills' quarterback who was making his first start for the injured Joe Ferguson, thought his team benefitted from a halftime talk given by coach Jim Ringo.

"He (Ringo) just was kind of mad at us for looking the way we were looking," Marangi said. "He let us know about it. In the first half we lost the game."

The Bills came out strong in the second half, with Marangi throwing touchdown passes of 11 and 9 yards to Bob Chandler. But a fourth quarter field goal of 35 yards by Leahy added to the Jets' lead.

Todd, the Jets' No. 1 draft pick from Alabama, was installed as the starting quarterback after Namath came up with a sore leg during the week.

"I was nervous and jittery," the curly-haired Todd said in his slight Southern drawl. "The first pass I threw was an interception, but that's happened to other people before. It was great to be on the team that won but I didn't feel I played that well. But I got a lot of experience."

Todd said he talked with Namath on the sidelines during the game.

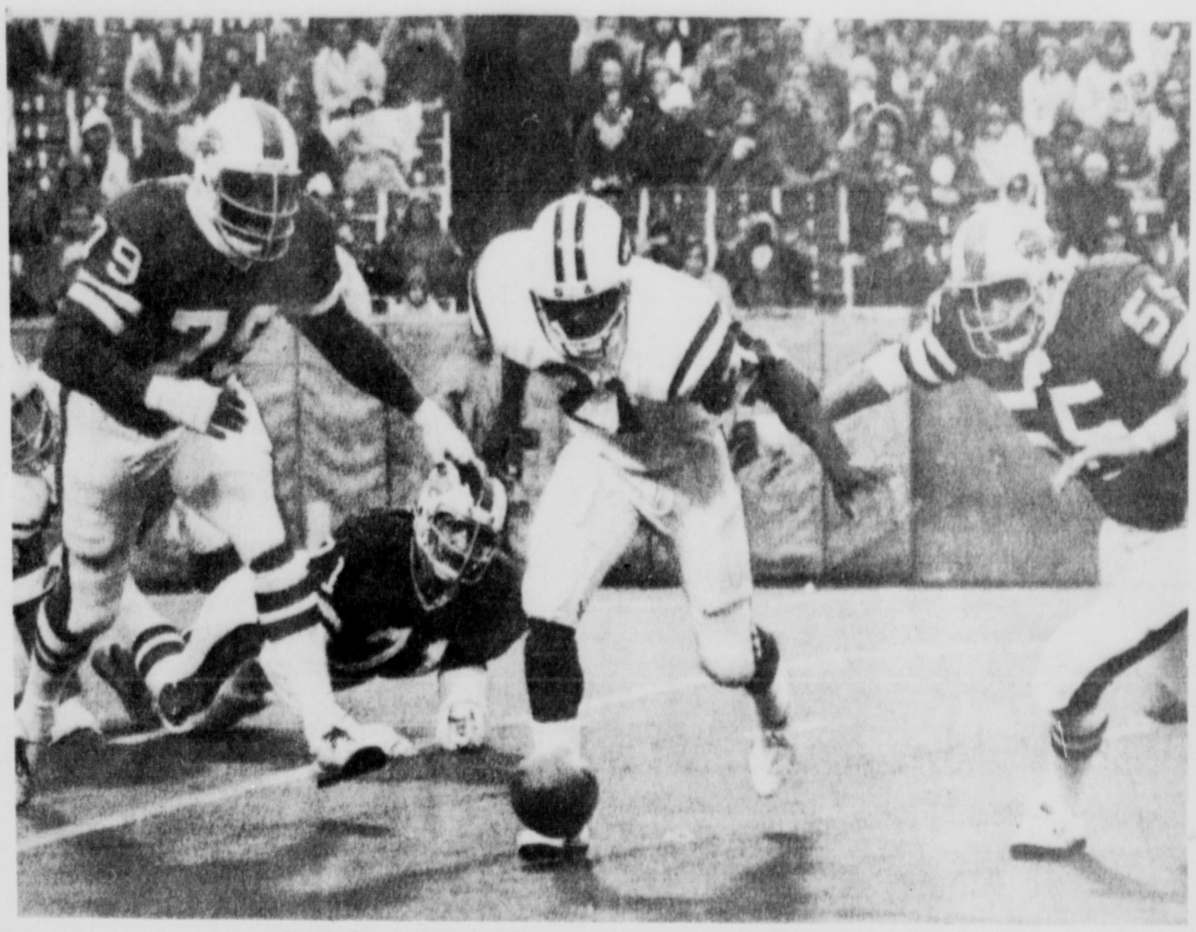

"Joe and I were talking on the sidelines," Todd said. "But I knew my mistakes, he didn't have to tell me."

O.J. Simpson picked up 166 yards in 29 carries for the Bills but looked like a beaten prize fighter after the game.

"I came in at halftime and was a little upset," said Simpson, whose left eye was swollen with a gash below it and a cut above it. He suffered the cut in the fourth quarter and wore a bandana-type bandage during the rest of the game.

"Today I got to the point where I was trying to run over everybody in the second half," Simpson said. "I took a few good shots."

"I'm very depresed, very down," Simpson added. "A win today would have helped."

Inept Giants Give Eagles Rare Shutout

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — The fact that Philadelphia was able to shut out the New York Giants 10-0 Sunday did not surprise the Eagles.

The fact it came on the eighth week of the season did.

"We thought we should have shut them out the first time we played them," said Philadelphia defensive lineman Blenda Gay in reference to the Eagles' 20-7 victory over the Giants on the second weekend of the season. "We had them down 20-0 then and we let up.

"We feel that any time we take a lead into the locker room at halftime we should win the game. We feel if we shut them out in the second half, the game is ours.

"That was the problem last week against Minnesota. We led 9-7 at half but we broke down in the second half and they ran all over us. Not this week, though."

It was the first shutout in eight years for the Eagles and it was the eighth straight defeat for the winless Giants. It also ruined the coaching debut of John McVay, who took over as head coach of the Giants last Monday after Bill Arnsparger was fired.

Mike Boryla hit Harold Carmichael with a 13-yard second quarter touchdown pass and Horst Muhlmann added a 29-yard field goal five minutes later to account for all of Philadelphia's points, and then it was just a question of whether the Eagles could keep the Giants off the scorebooard.

Gay and Co. preserved the shutout with a pair of goal line stands in the final four minutes.

The first came after Jimmy Robinson linked up with quarterback Craig Morton for a 29yard pass to give New York a first-and-goal situation at the Philadelphia three. But three running plays lost the Giants three yards and a fourth down pass by Morton flew over everyone's head.

Philadelphia failed to move the ball from there and was forced to punt. The Giants moved right back downfield and a 21-yard pass to Robinson put the ball on the Eagles' nine with less than a minute remaining. This time the Giants went to the air right away but Ray Rhodes couldn't catch up with a Morton pass in the corner of the end zone.

Then Manny Sistrunk sacked Morton for a four-yard loss and on the final play of the game, a desperation pass by Morton sailed out of the end zone.

"I'm very pleased in getting the first shutout in I don't know how many years," said Philadelphia coach Dick Vermeil, whose team improved its record to 3-5 with the victory. When he was informed the last Eagle shutout was in 1968, Vermeil responded, "That's just super."

The shutout was well deserved. The Eagles held the Giants to just four first downs and a net of 73 yards in t he first half and sacked Morton six times in the game.

It was the second straight week the Giants have been shut out.

"I feel you have to put three scores on the board to win a professional football game," said McVay. "If you do that, you figure you'll win 21-14 or 21-10 or 17-14...something like that. This was the exception today.

"Our defense did the job and I thought our offense moved the ball pretty good. We just didn't score any points...and that's the name of the game."

49ers Blunder Into OT Defeat

By UPI

Monte Clark must have been wondering when the San Francisco 49ers became a charitable organization.

Here were his 49ers, the hottest team in the National Football League for the past month and ranked No. 1 in defense, absolutely handing a game to the St. Louis Cardinals.

San Francisco blunders led to 10 Cardinals points Sunday, including the winning 21-yard field goal by Jim Bakken eight minutes into overtime as St. Louis ended the 49ers' winning streak at five games with a 2320 victory.

Bakken's clutch kick also ruined a three-touchdown, 194yard performance by the 49ers' Delvin Williams and plunged San Francisco into second place in the NFC West, a half-game behind Los Angeles.

The victory was set up when the 49ers' Anthony Leonard fumbled a punt and Steve Jones recovered for the Cards at the San Francisco 42. Jim Otis gained 38 yards in six carries to the four before Bakken hit his winning kick.

"It's not automatic by any stretch of the imagination," Bakken said of the 21-yard kick. "Maybe it looks that way but you can never be certain. I was confident and maybe a bit anxious, but not nervous."

The victory kept the Cardinals in the thick of the NFC Eastern Division race with a 62 record while the loss dropped the 49ers to second place in the West with a similar 6-2 record.

Clark also watched Steve Mike-Mayer of the 49ers, who had 10 straight field goals entering the game, go wide on two second half attempts, including a 23-yarder with two minutes left.

The Cardinals tied the game 20-20 on a 77-yard TD pass from Jim Hart to Mel Gray with just over eight minutes to go. Bakken's extra point attempt was blocked. St. Louis also scored on a 23-yard pass from Hart to Terry Metcalf with 37 seconds left in the third quarter but Jim Plunkett put the 49ers back ahead 20-14 just two minutes later.

Plunkett passed 16 yards to Jim Lash and then hit him again for 43 yards to the one. Williams took it over two plays later for his third TD.

Clark must have sensed it was going to be one of those days after the way the 49ers bungled the opening kickoff.

Leonard and Paul Hofer were deep. Each thought the other was taking the kickoff and raced downfield to block, leaving the ball behind at the eight. St. Louis recovered and three plays later, Hart threw the first of three TD passes, a nine-yarder to J.V. Cain.

"We gave them seven points right at the beginning. That was the game right there," said Clark. "A heckuva lot of good effort went into this game. We just had some bad breaks. It's a shame all the effort had to go down the drain because of a couple bad plays."

Williams was somber despite his outstanding performance.

"For me, it was a grand individual effort, but for the team it was a disappointment," Williams said. "Those mistakes really hurt us."

Bears 14, Vikings 13

Walter Payton raced 39 yards for a first quarter TD to spark Chicago over Minnesota and knock out the last unbeaten team remaining in the NFL. Vikings' quarterback Fran Tarkenton surpassed John Unitas' record 40,239 career passing yards with his ninth completion. Johnny Musso scored the first touchdown for Chicago, recovering his own fumble in the end zone following a threeyard run.

Cowboys 20, Redskins 7

Doug Dennison and Roger Staubach each plunged for a TD and the Dallas defense set up two Efren Herrera field goals to nail down a victory over Washington. The win boosted Dallas' record to 7-1. The Redskins adverted their first shutout since 1971 when Eddie Brown returned a punt 59 yards with less than two minutes left to set up Joe Theismann's seven-yard TD pass to Roy Jefferson.

Raiders 19, Broncos 6

Ken Stabler threw a 31-yard TD pass to Fred Biletnikoff and Clarence Davis ran seven yards for another score in the last quarter to snap a 6-6 tie and lift Oakland over Denver. It was the Raiders' seventh win in eight games and gave them a three-game lead over Denver and San Diego in the AFC West with six games left.

Bengals 21, Browns 6

Boobie Clark ran for 100 yards and two one-yard TDs to lead Cincinnati over Cleveland as the Bengals tightened their grip on first place in the AFC Central. Ken Anderson threw a 69-yard TD pass to Isaac Curtis to help the Bengals raise their record to 6-2.

Steelers 23, Chargers 0

Terry Bradshaw, back after missing two games with a neck injury, passed for one TD and ran a yard for another in a three-touchdown fourth quarter that lifted Pittsburgh over San Diego. Reggie Harrison rushed for 108 yards for the Steelers, who have recorded back-toback shutouts for the first time since 1942.

Rams 45, Seahawks 6

James Harris, returning after a two-game absence with a shoulder injury, threw two firsthalf TD passed to carry Los Angeles past Seattle and back into first place in the NFC West. Harris hit Ron Jessie and Harold Jackson for scores. Jessie made a leaping 15-yard TD reception in the first quarter to give the Rams a 24-0 lead and Jackson caught a 20yarder to put LA ahead 31-3 at halftime.

Dolphins 10, Patriots 3

Bob Griese threw a 16-yard TD pass to Jim Mandich and a rejuvenated Miami defense stopped explosive New England. The Dolphins took a 10-3 halftime lead and then turned the game over to an aggressive defense, which apparently got an emotional lift with the return of coach Bill Arnsparger, fired by the Giants Monday.

Lions 27, Packers 6

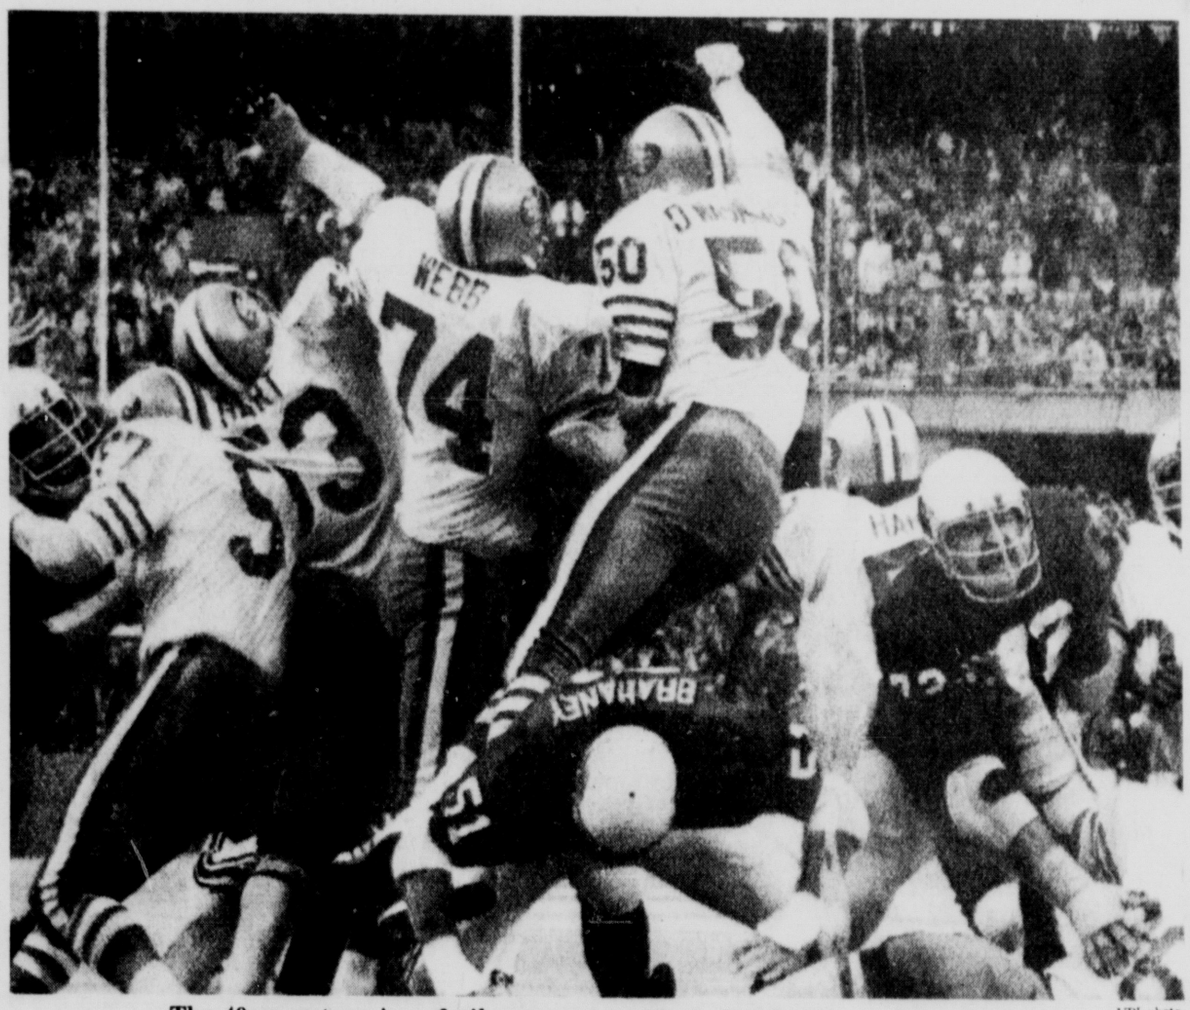

Ray Jarvis caught six Greg Landry passes for 163 yards and two TDs to lead Detroit past Green Bay. Landry completed 12 of 19 passes for 211 yards and the two TDs. His 74yard TD pass to Jarvis in the first quarter was the longest Detroit score by passing or running in three seasons.

Falcons 23, Saints 20

Scott Hunter, a third stringer who didn't play football last year, hit 10 of 11 passes, two for scores, in the second half to rally Atlanta past New Orleans. The Falcons trailed 14-0 but Hunter took over after halftime and tied it with TD passes of 17 and five yards to Alfred Jenkins and Haskel Stanback.

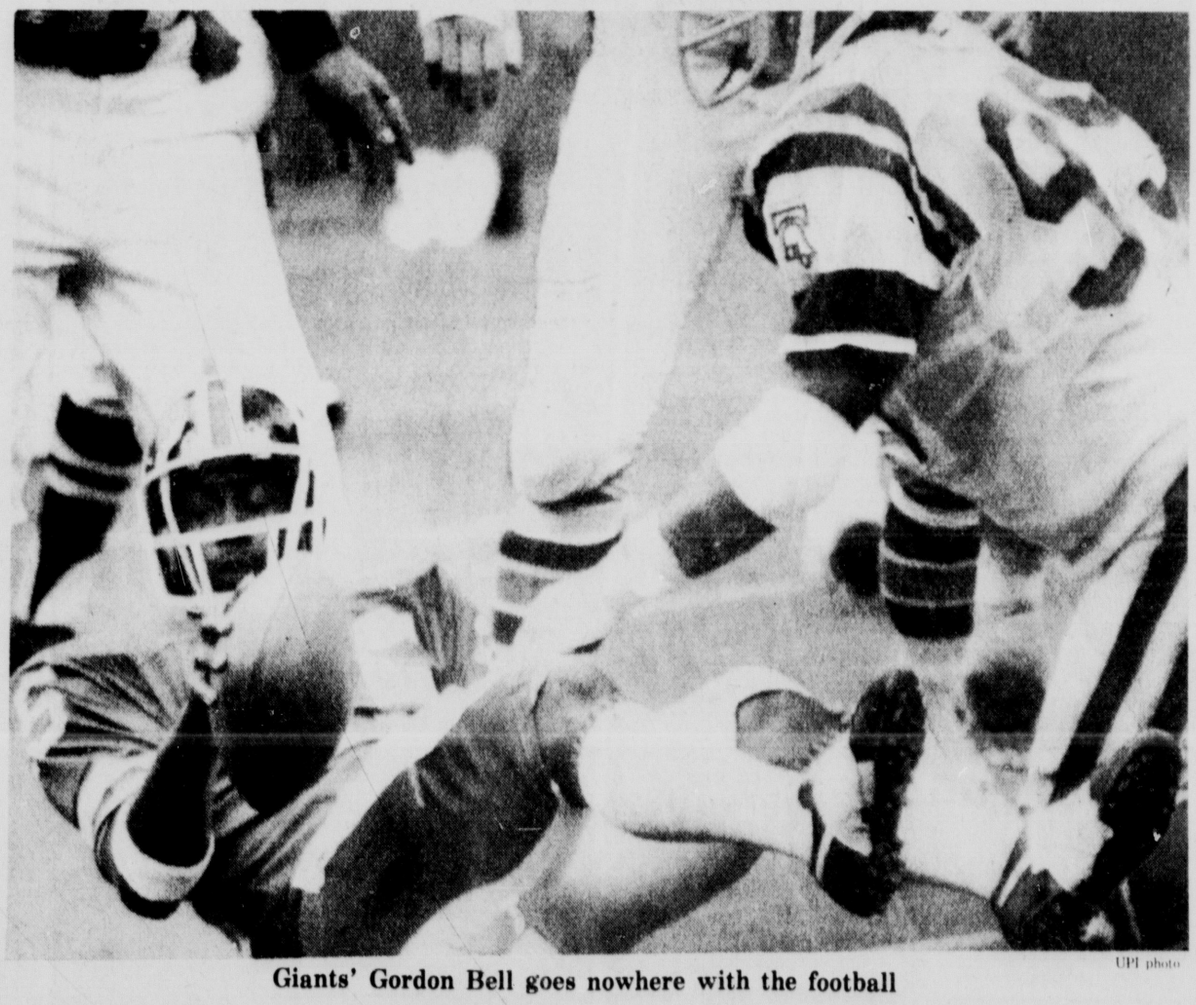

Chiefs 28, Buccaneers 19

Mike Livingston threw two two-yard TD passes in the third period and Jan Stenerud kicked two field goals to lead Kansas City over Tampa Bay. Livingston threw to Billy Masters and Walter White for scores and the Chiefs then survived a 19-point Tampa Bay blitz in the final period.

Oilers, Colts Tonight

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Houston Oilers, who have given up 57 points in two straight losses, face their stiffest defensive challenge of the season tonight—the Baltimore Colts, featuring Bert Jones and Co.

The Colts, 6-1, can take a two-game lead over the New England Patriots in the AFC Eastern Division if Jones, the conference's leading passer, can unravel the Oilers' defense, second best in the AFC on the basis of yardage allowed.

"We'll just have to play our game. We can't be overly concerned about what they do," said Colts' coach Ted Marchibroda.

But his club practiced all week exclusively against Houston's three linemen, four linebacker alignment, and centers Ken Mendenhall and Forrest Blue put in extra time trying to figure out how to handle 6-foot-1, 265-pound middle guard Curley Culp.

"Culp will always be on my head," said Mendenhall, one of the keys to the Colts' successful offensive line. "He normally will slant to one side or the other, but sometimes he comes straight ahead, and he is a load to block."

The Oilers have 35 quarterback sacks, two more than the Colts.

Houston is 4-3 and facing the possibility of losing its third straight game for the first time since O.A. "Bum" Phillips took over the coaching reins before last season. Also, another loss would put the Oilers two games down to Cincinnati in the tough AFC Central Division.

"There'll be nothing new this week," said Phillips. "Just some blocking and tackling for a change."

Jones is the man the Oilers have to stop. He has completed 58 per cent of his passes for an average gain of 9.38 yards per attempt, using all his targets well.

Lydell Mitchell, the AFC's leading rusher before Sunday's games, also leads the club in receiving with 24 catches, followed by wide receivers Glenn Doughty and Roger Carr with 22 and 18 catches, respectively. Carr's average gain per catch has been a whopping 32.6 yards, and he has six touchdowns.

The Colts' defense is only 10th best in the AFC against the pass, but is sixth overall.

"The Oilers offer our defense a great challenge," said Marchibroda. "They are an explosive ballclub—one that can hit the home run at any time."

Quarterback Dan Pastorini has completed 55 per cent of his passes, but is averaging just 5.94 yards per pass, third worst in the conference. Ken Burrough (31 catches) and Billy "White Shoes" Johnson (29) are his favorite targets.

Johnson is listed as a doubtful starter because of an ankle injury, but the Oilers' injury report still reads better than it has in weeks. Linebacker Ted Washington is doubtful with a knee injury, but running back Fred Willis is probable with a shoulder problem.

The Oilers' running game is the worst in the AFC. Ronnie Coleman leads it with 317 yards, less than half Mitchell's impressive total of 660.

SPORT PARADE

Milton Richman,
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The ball club had assured me it was on the way.

I was so anxious to get it, I couldn't sleep at night.

Every morning, I'd run to meet the mailman. I kept hounding him for days and he kept telling me to be patient, it was bound to show up sooner or later.

Finally it did — my first honest-to-God professional baseball contract, an 8-½ by 11-¾ inch piece of paper I'd been waiting for all my life.

At the top were the words: Uniform Player Contract.

The line under that said "The Williamston, N.C., Club, herein called the Club, a member of the Coastal Plain League, and Milton Richman, herein called the Player, are the parties of this contract."

Under a section which said "Payment," the agreement was spelled out.

"For the service aforesaid subsequent to the training season the Club will pay the Player at the rate of $75 per month."

That came to a whopping $18.75 a week, which wouldn't buy you a good bicycle even in 1939, but I couldn't have been happier had they given me a million bucks in cold cash.

An aunt of mine was a lawyer and somebody suggested I show her the contract. I did that, and after reading it over, she told me it really wasn't a legal contract.

"A legal contract must be binding on both parties," she told me. "This piece of paper binds only one party, YOU the player, but not the ball club."

That didn't bother me. She was a woman. What did she know about professional baseball? Nothing.

I took the contract back and signed it immediately, before anybody with the ball club might change his mind. A week or so later, the contract came back to me with a letter from the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues' Office in Durham, N.C.

The late William G. Bramham, who headed the minor leagues at the time, informed me that since I was only 17 years old, legally I was still a minor, and that somebody like my father, mother or legal guardian would have to sign the contract.

No trouble. I got my father to sign it.

The whole thing all comes back now when I hear about how Julius Erving was unhappy over his contract with the Nets and how he refused to play unless it was renegotiated or he was sent to another club that would give him the money he wanted.

Julius Erving isn't alone. Other athletes are talking about renegotiating their contracts, always upward, never downward.

I'm not trying to give anybody the impression I was in Julius Erving's class as a ballplayer, or anywhere near it, but I was taught a contract was much more than merely a piece of paper. It was an agreement in which both parties were expected to keep their word.

Doesn't anyone keep his word anymore? Doesn't an individual's word mean anything anymore? If it doesn't, we're all in much worse shape than we imagine. If a man's word isn't good anymore, then how much character, how much substance, can there be to the man himself, and what can we possibly respect or use as a workable vehicle of honest agreement?

Julius Erving's agent says Roy Boe, the Nets' owner, made some side agreements with Erving and that Boe didn't keep his word. I don't know anything about that. All I know is that Julius Erving was involved in a similar situation before with the Virginia Squires and that everytime attorney Bob Woolf, who represented him in that one, talks about it, he says Julius Erving didn't keep his word to him either.

Much of the problem, it seems, lies in the recent proliferation of these long-term contracts. A player signs one and does well, and he wants to renegotiate. The ball club isn't allowed that same privilege if the player does poorly during the length of the contract. I'm not going to begin bleeding for any of the owners here, but something's not right with such a system.

Red Auerbach, the Boston Celtics' boss, once told me anytime he ever signs a player to a multi-year contract, he makes it clearly understood beforehand: That's it. No renegotiation either way.

"You're happy?" Auerbach asks the player before he signs. "Good! I'm happy, too. Now don't come running in asking to renegotiate a year from now because I'm telling you right now I'm not going to do it."

Bill DeWitt, chairman of the board with the Chicago White Sox, has handled more than a thousand player contracts in his time and remembers renegotiating only one, that of third baseman Harlond Clift, when DeWitt ran the old St. Louis Browns.

Clift was going bad in late June and was worried about having his contract cut the following year. DeWitt heard about it, called Clift in and told him if it would make him feel any better, he'd sign him for next year at the same salary.

"If you make it $1,000 more, I'll sign it," said Clift. DeWitt gave him the $1,000 whereupon Clift proceeded to have an excellent second half.

"Maybe I made a mistake signing that contract back there in June," Clift laughed and told DeWitt at the end of the year.

DeWitt understood what Clift was saying. He tore up the contract for the following year and gave his third baseman another one with a $2,500 raise.

That was in the late '30s when $2,500 bought more than it does now. For that kind of money, today's athletes wouldn't even bother renegotiating.

Ranger John Davison (00) makes a rough stop

Giacomin Continues To Haunt Rangers

NEW YORK (UPI) — One year to the day after the New York Rangers unceremoniously dumped him, Eddie Giacomin came back to haunt his former teammates and to taunt them with his presence.

The fact that the anniversary fell on Halloween was only coincidental. Wasn't it?

"It must be the new mask I'm wearing," Giacomin joked when asked what kind of Halloween spell he holds over the Rangers.

With two shutouts to his credit already this season, Giacomin's latest success wasn't as artistic as he would have liked. But he still was all smiles after he helped the Detroit Red Wings to a 6-5 victory over New York Sunday night, the winning goal coming from J.P. Leblanc with only 20 seconds left to play.

Strangely, the contest closely parallelled Giacomin's first appearance against the Rangers last year, two days after their Halloween folly when they let him go to Detroit on waivers. In that game the Red Wings jumped off to a 4-0 first period lead (Sunday night it was 3-0), and then held on for a 6-4 triumph.

"It wasn't as emotional as last year," Giacomin recalled, alluding to the overwhelming response he received then from the New York fans. "Nothing could be like last year. But the results were almost identical, and last year too it was our first road victory."

Giacomin, now 37, played 10 years with the Rangers and he still admits he would have liked to finish his career with them. "But there is no bitterness. I have no grudge against them. I have to accept the fact I'm with the Detroit Red Wings now. They gave me a new life, made me feel useful, and maybe they added a few years to my career."

Detroit has won but three of 11 games this year, and Giacomin has been in the net for all three.

The frustrated Rangers first fought back from a 3-0 deficit Sunday night, then tied the game at 5-5 on a goal by Rod Gilbert with only 37 seconds to play. But Leblanc scored his second goal of the game and of the season on a short backhander 17 seconds later.

"Lack of concentration after a goal has been a problem of ours all season," Gilbert said. "We've been talking about it, saying that after we score we should maintain our concentration. But we seem to get so excited after we score a goal that we have a lapse."

Rangers coach John Ferguson, fuming after the game, said, "We played lousy and we deserved to lose. There'll be changes."

Dennis Polonich, Mike Bloom, Buster Harvey and Dan Maloney scored the other Detroit goals while Steve Vickers had two for the Rangers and Ken Hodge and Walt Tkaczuk added one each

Flyers 9, North Stars 1

From their record, you might almost begin to suspect that the entire Philadelphia Flyers are balancing themselves on Bobby Clarke's ankle.

It isn't mere coincidence that when Clarke was hobbling along with a bad ankle, the Flyers dropped three of their first four games this season. Nor that as Clarke recovered, the club righted itself and now has put together an eight-game unbeaten string.

Clarke, held to a single goal for the first 10 games, registered three over the weekend, including two on Sunday night when he also had four assists as Philadelphia blasted the Minnesota North Stars, 9-1. The victory boosted the Flyers into a first place tie with the idle New York Islanders in the Patrick Division of the National Hockey League.

A subdued type off the ice, Clarke wasn't about to make any rash predictions about whether the Flyers were at a peak, particularly since their last six victories all have come at home.

"Well, you can't tell that until we get out on the road," the Flyers' team captain said. "That will give us a better indication whether we've reached a peak or not."

In a light Sunday schedule, there were only three other games played in the NHL. The Buffalo Sabres won a key Adams Division battle with the Boston Bruins, 4-1, and the Chicago Black Hawks beat the Washington Capitals, 5-4.

The program was even lighter in the World Hockey Association, with the Houston Aeros beating the Edmonton Oilers, 4-0, and the Winnipeg Jets beating the San Diego Mariners, 6-4, in the only action.

Sabres 4, Bruins 1

Faced with the prospect of falling 11 points behind the pace-setting Bruins in the Adams Division so early in the race, Buffalo snapped a fourgame Boston winning streak as defenseman Jocelyn Guevremont scored his first two goals of the season and Lee Fogolin and Andre Savard added one each.

"It was almost a must game for us," said Buffalo coach Floyd Smith, whose team is now only seven points behind. "If they would have won, it would have taken an awful long time for us to catch them."

Black Hawks 5, Capitals 4

Dick Redmond and Grant Mulvey scored two goals apiece to lead Chicago, with Redmond's final goal at 11:12 of the third period proving to be the winner. Washington jumped off to a 3-1 lead in the opening period on goals by Hartland Monahan, Rick Bragnalo and Guy Charron, and Charron added another score in the second period.

WHA

Mark Howe scored one goal and assisted on another to support the shutout goaltending of Wayne Rutledge as Houston beat Edmonton, and Bob Guindon and Peter Sullivan scored 10 seconds apart in the third period to provide Winnipeg with its margin of victory over San Diego.

SAA Premier League Opens

SAUGERTIES — Saugerties Athletic Association kicked off its Premier League basketball season last week with a pair of one-sided contests won by Naccarato Insurance and Kaye Sports.

Naccarato crushed Gokey Brothers Construction, 118-72, while Kaye was downing Boo's Tavern, 116-87.

The Insurers were spakred by Rod Chando's 29 point performance. Fellow guard Jack Naccarato pumped in 20 points and added six assists. Center Ted Wood flipped in 20 points and came away with 30, count them, 30 rebounds. Matt Zweig added 15 points and Tim Murphy combined 12 points with 15 rebounds.

Mark Toney paced the losers with 18 points. Ron Burris fired in 15.

The big statistical difference was on the boards where Naccarato pulled down 74 rebounds to Gokey's 33.

Larry Panella, Rich Koegel and Tom Whitaker, three former Saugerties High School standouts, were the big guns in the Kaye Sports win. Panella tossed in 28 points while his two mates split 48. Joe Hellenschmidt came away with 18 points and 16 rebounds; Ray Bean netted 14 points and delivered nine assists; Koegel yanked in 15 rebounds and Whitaker added 12.

John Kelly led the way for Boo;s with 33 points. Ron Thomas tallied 26. Bill Robinson totaled 10 rebounds and Frank Babic passed off for eight assists.

The boxes:

Naccarato Insurance (118) — Chando 29, Naccarato 20, Wood 20, Zweig 15, Benjamin 12, Murphy 12, Marcus 10
Gokey Brothers (72) — Toney 18, Burris 15, Wilcox 2, Kennan 10, Martin 8, Szynal 6, Freligh 3.

A Rookie and A Veteran Lead Pensacola Final

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) — A kid trying to prove himself for the first time and a veteran trying to make a comeback battle it out in today's final round of the rain-delayed $125,000 Pensacola Open golf tournament.

The kid, 28-year-old Gary Wintz of Daytona Beach, Fla., fired a 4-under-par 67 Sunday to vault into the third-round lead with a 54-hole total of 207 —six under par. His best showing so far this year is a tie for 23rd in the New Orleans Open.

The veteran, only one stroke behind at 208, is Frank Beard, who shot a 69 Sunday to go with earlier rounds of 69 and 70.

Beard, who turned pro in 1962 and has won 11 tournaments, has been in a slump the last four years. This year he is No. 170 on the PGA money list with winnings of only $5,279.

Waiting for Wintz and Beard to falter are four players at 209, only two strokes off the pace: Tom Purtzer, another youngster, whose best showing this year was a tie for second in the Magnolia Classic satellite tournament; and veterans Lee Elder, Jerry McGee and Mark Hayes.

Bunched at 210, three strokes back, are Bob Murphy, George Archer, Phil Rodgers and Tom Jenkins.

Wintz admitted he bowed a bit to superstition Sunday.

"A lot of guys on the tour have told me it's not a good idea to look at the scoreboard," said the young Floridian, who joined the tour last year. "I didn't look at the board all day."

But when he saw a large gallery waiting for his finish on 18, Wintz said he realized he was the frontrunner.

"I tried not to think about it. I tried not to get nervous. On the other holes I was shooting for the hole, but on the 18th I was just shooting for the green."

Wintz' round Sunday was nearly faultless—with birdies on the 3rd, 6th, 12th and 13th holes and no bogeys. He said his best shot was a near chip-in from 60 yards away on the sixth hole.

The ball landed six inches from the cup and he tapped it in for a birdie.

Noting that his wife is expecting a baby in February, Wintz agreed that the $25,000 first prize would more than cover the hospital bills.

Beard said now that he has his swing back "the hardest part is concentrating on winning the tournament during four days. The swing seems to be taking care of itself."

"It's a new experience for the last four years. It's hard; I'm tired right now."

About the kid, Wintz, Beard, the veteran, had this to say: "Obviously this kid Wintz has got to be a good golfer to be on the tour and to be six under in this tournament. But anybody can win it."

Wintz birdied the 3rd, 6th, 12th and 13th holes and parred the others. Probably his best shot was a chip from 60 yards away which landed six inches from the cup on the sixth hole.

"It semed like everything went the right way for me today," said Wintz, who has changed his clubs, his grip and his swing within the last few weeks. "It's (the swing) working good. I'm taking it back a little more."

With a large gallery forming around the green on the 18th hole, Wintz said he knew then that he was the frontrunner.

"I tried not to think about it," he said. "I tried not to get nervous. On the other holes I was shooting for the hole, but on the 18th I was just shooting for the green."

Beard, who fired a 2-underpar 69 Sunday to go with a 69 and a 70 in the first two rounds, is making a comeback after a dismal year in which he has won only $5,279.

"I kind of scrambled the last four or five holes," Beard said. "But I played very well; no complaints."

Referring to changes he has made in his swing, Beard said, "I'm standing taller through the ball. I'm not sure if I'm looking for my old swing or a new one. Whatever it is, it seems to have drastically changed my game."

McGee, who was tied for the lead after the first round and led by a stroke after 36 holes, said, "I didn't play quite as well. It seemed everything I did was wrong, and I putted pathetic. I only made one all day."

Elder said he played well on the front nine, but got cold on the back nine and his legs began to bother him.

Stone Leads

OSAKA, Japan (UPI) — Beth Stone shot a three-under-par 71 today and took the first round lead in the $100,000 Mizuno Classic golf tournament at nearby Hanayashiki Country Club.

The 54-hole event on the 6,925yard, par-74 course is the first of three successive tournaments on the Asian segment of the Ladies Professional Golf he Association tour. It will be followed by events in Manila and Hong Kong, ending the official LPGA season. About 50 of the American women pros are competing.

Roth Increases PBA Lead

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Mark Roth increased his lead from five to 57 pins over Paul Colwell after the fourth round Sunday night of the $60,000 Northern Ohio Open bowling tournament on the PBA circuit.

Roth, three-time champion from Staten Island, N.Y., ended 26 games with a total pinfall of 6,176, including 5,966 actual pins spilled, a 229 average. He also aded 210 bonus pins, 30 for each of his seven victories in match play.

Rounding out the top five behind Colwell, Tucson, Ariz., at 6,119 were Larry Laub, San Francisco, 6,101; Marshall Holman, Medford, Ore., 5,939; and Barry Asher, Costa Mesa, Calif., 5,898.

Although Colwell knocked down eight more pins than Roth in the night session, Roth was able to increase his lead by going 7-1 in match games while Colwell could post only a 5-3 slate.

But the biggest move to challenge those two came from Laub. The eight-time champion had the night's high round of 1,912 to help him close to within 18 pins of Colwell and 75 of Roth.

After the final 16 games of match play Monday, the winner will receive $6,000.

Dibbs Tops Fillol

PARIS (UPI) — Top-seeded Eddie Dibbs of the United States defeated Chile's Jaime Fillol in a three-hour battle Sunday to win the $50,000 Paris Grand Prix Tennis Tournaments.

Dibbs, 25, of Miami Beach, won the match 5-7, 6-4, 6-4, 7-6 before 3,000 spectators at Pierre de Coubertin Stadium.

The short, stocky American passed Fillol consistently at the net and systematically countered the Chilean's effort to change the tempo of the game with high, soft balls.

Surprisingly, Dibbs often went to the net himself, forcing Fillol into many errors.

Dibbs is a familiar figure on Paris tennis courts, having won the Coubertin competition in 1974 and twice reaching the semifinals of the French International Tennis championships.

Dutchman Tom Okker and American Marty Riessen teamed up to win the doubles by easily defeating the U.S. team of Fred McNair and Sherwood Stewart 6-2, 6-2.

McNair suffered from stomach pains during the match.

Ramirez Suffers Upset

VIENNA (UPI) — Poland's Wojtek Fibak upset secondseeded Raul Ramirez of Mexico 6-7, 6-3, 6-4, 2-6, 6-1 Sunday to win the $54,000 Grand Prix indoor tournament.

The 24-year-old Fibak, seeded fifth, combined sharp service returns with a crisp volleying game at the net to capture the $10,000 first prize in a 3 hours and 20 minutes match.

"I was luckier than Raul," said Fibak, who had beaten Arthur Ashe in the quarterfinals. "It is very difficult to play a good friend."

Top-ranked Jimmy Connors had withdrawn from the competition because of a back injury.

Ramirez broke Fibak's serve in the ninth game of the first set but Fibak broke back immediately to set up a tiebreak, which Ramirez won seven points to five.

Fibak clearly dominated in the next two sets but appeared to lose his concentration in the fourth when Ramirez evened the match at two sets apiece.

Yakin Isn't Sorry The End Is in Sight

MONTICELLO —Trainer-driver Richard Yakin says he won't be sorry to see the year 1976 draw to a close.

"I've had no luck with my good horses," he said. "The cheap claimers have stayed pretty sound. But I've had my problems with my good ones."

Case in point: In the standardbred business every horseman dreams of coming up with a good trotter. And for good, sound financial reasons. You can make a lot of money with a trotter that has ability because they are rarer and you don;t have the competition you have with a pacer.

Richie Yankin's ticket to financial health was a five-year-old trotter named Spanish Riddle. As a three-year-old, Spanish Riddle showed a great deal of promise — racing with the good ones and holding his own on the Florida circuit. Last winter, the trotter won three out of four at the Monticello winter meeting.

Then, just as Richie was getting the pride of his stable ready for the 1976 racing season, something intruded between his dream and reality. That something was a ruptured suspensory and Spanish Riddle had to be put on the shelf.

"I've been trying to get him back to the races ever since," Richie said mournfully. "But no luck. Everytime I put pressure on him he starts hurting."

Not that Richie is a stranger to adversity. The best pacer in his stable, My May Stave, a five-year-old that is more of a pet than race horse, has had his share of troubles over the years.

My Man Steve's had a fractured knee, a ruptured suspensory ligament and a broken split bone since I've had him," he said. "And he still can pace a mile in 2:04. Can you imagine what he'd of been like without all those problems."

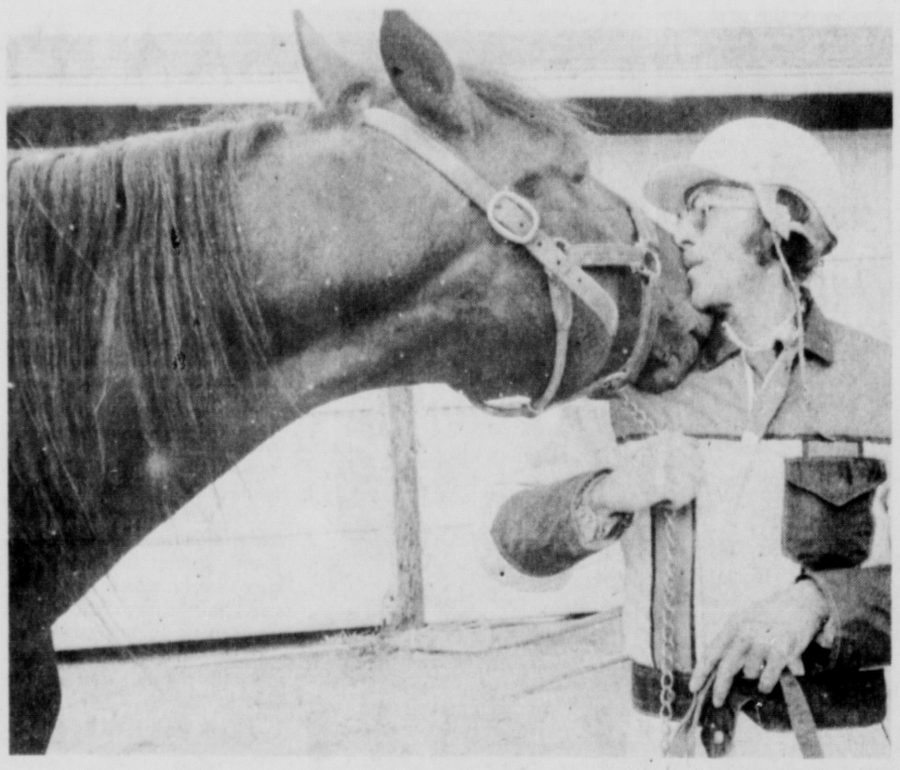

Yakin, 33, is a home-grown product. He grew up in the Monticello area, graduated from Monticello High School and started out life as a grease monkey and drag racer. Then he got the harness racing bug.

"I've always been attracted to sports with speed," he said. "After I quit drag racing I decided I wanted to be a horseman. So I worked as a groom for five years and then went on my own."

In 1970,the second year he had his driver's license, he was the second leading driver at Monticello. He's also done awfully well with a number of cheap claimers. He claimed Tiogas Flora for $2,000,for instance, and won $21,000 in purse money before losing the pacer. He almost did as well with General Mark, claiming the cheap plater for $2,000 and winning $10,000 with it.

He has eight horses in his stable and 17 on his farm in Bethel. He and his wife Vita work side by side, running both operations. They've been married only a year and have the same interests. She was working as a groom in the Monticello stable area when they met. Now she's a licensed trainer and hopes to also have a full dirver's license some day.

Despite the fact that 1976 has been a disappointment, Richie is optimistic about next year.

'A' Race Narrows

SAUGERTIES — The pennant race in the A Division of the SAA volleyball league has virtually narrowed to a two team affair as the Bowlers Club Spares and the Fire Department both swept series to again pull further away from the pack. The Spares currently hold a three-game lead over the Smokeaters with a head on clash set for Tuesday.

In the B Division the Village Diner and Tomaseski's, the main contenders for the title, had their long awaited set, and it went to the Dinermen.

The VD won the opener, 14-11, lost, 15-4 then took the rubber game, 15-2. The winners increased their lead to four games and lifted their record to 16-2.

The girls' divisions have completed the initial portion of their seasons. Turk Construction took the East flag with a perfect 20-0 slate, the Greenbacks won the Central Division with an 18-2 mark, and Sunshine won the West with a 17-3 mark.

Pine St. Counseling Center...A Problem-Saving Agency

KINGSTON—"The trouble with currently available mental health care in this community is that there are too many incompetent, unqualified 'counselors' doing a lot of damage," says Dr. Herman Lowe, certified clinical psychologist and director of the new Pine Street Counseling Center in Kingston.

"There has been a great need to organize truly qualified, specialized professionals in order to provide a comprehensive, interdisciplinary approach to mental health care and education," he adds.

The Pine Street Counseling Center, opening this week, is Dr. Lowe's answer to this pressing need. The Center is a private clinic, the first of its kind in this area, although similar and highly successful facilities have recently been formed throughout the country.

The purpose of the new Center is to provide the public with a wide range of mental health services under one roof. Both diagnosis and treatment will be done right at the clinic, so patients need no longer be pushed from one place to another in their search for the right services.

Because of the vast range of specialties and experience possessed by the clinic's team of consultants, all the various psychotherapeutic approaches will be employed, based on the clinic's diagnosis and the patient's choice. "The advantage," explains Dr. Lowe, "is that you don't have to get stuck. A patient need never be afraid to change his or her doctor or type of therapy. We are not analytically oriented; we are a problem-solving agency."

Pine Street Counseling Center will make available action-oriented programs in the areas of marriage and family counseling, educational and vocational counseling, including college placement, learning disabilities, education remediation, and golden-age counseling. Each program is designed to help the individual live an emotionally satisfying and productive life.

Action-oriented programs in the areas of marriage and family counseling, educational and vocational counseling, including college placement, learning disabilities, education remediation and golden age counseling.

In addition, weekly group workshops are being planned for those who wish to improve their personal effectiveness or deal with such problems as weight control, smoking, communicating with adolescents, and parent effectiveness.

The Center's almost unlimited resources are made possible through the dedicated work of eight consultants: Dr.Dorothy E. Baker, specialist in child psychiatry; Charles R. Britting, Ed.D., counselor; Dr. Milton Chasin, optometrist and specialist in learning disabilities; Dr. Alfred T. Frontera, certified neurologist; Berton S. Ketchum, M.S., occupational and educational counselor; Muriel Landesman, M.S.W., certified social worker at Benedictine Hospital; Joyce Lowe, M.S., coordinator; and Lynne W. Reynolds, M.Ed., speech pathologist and audiologist, who will work with children towards remediation of learning disabilities. Dr. Lowe emphasizes that only licensed, certified and experienced people will be employed by the Counseling Center.

The clinical team at 138 Pine St., believes that everyone should have access to good mental health care services. "The need was always there," says the Center's director, "but now there is more focus on mental health than there used to be." More people are willing to seek help in confronting stress, and men and women today believe that they can and should search for happiness.

The new Counseling Center welcomes people of all ages and there will be no waiting lists. Fees are moderate, and Medicaid patients will be accepted. Although many people are unaware of the fact, Dr. Lowe stresses that most health insurance will provide coverage for mental health care patients.

A series of open houses, will be held to celebrate the opening of Pine Street Counseling Center and to further inform doctors, educators, attorneys and other professional agencies of the Center's purposes and available services.

The Center is located at Pine Street Professional Park. Hours are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. Those persons interested in arranging for a consultation are invited to call the Center.

Swimming and Riding For Handicapped, Too

KINGSTON—Horseback riding and swimming are taken for granted as natural pasttimes for many area residents, but steps have been taken to insure that some physically handicapped persons can partake of the same enjoyment.

The Children's Rehabilitation Center has developed a therapeutic swimming and horseback riding program for 19 of its handicapped youth, with the swimming at Ramada Inn and riding at Woodstock Stables.

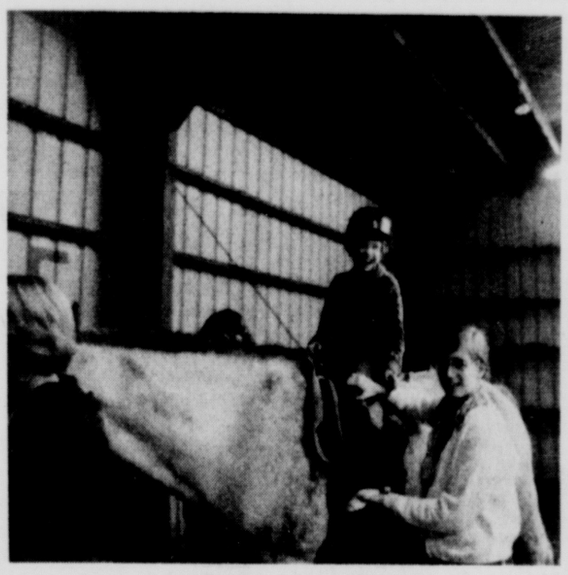

According to David J. Panner, executive director of the center, the program was developed because of the lack of social and recreational experiences for the physically handicapped in Ulster County.

He said its objectives are to develop self-confidence and social skills; provide interaction among handicapped and their non-handicapped Peers and to improve physical functioning.

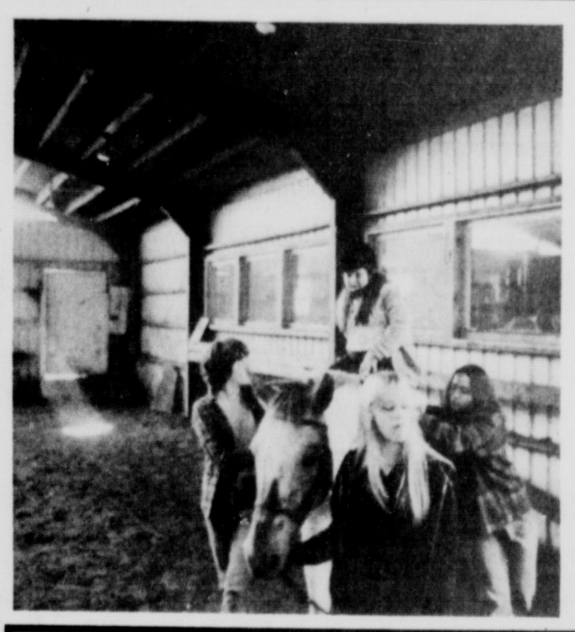

Three staff members are aided by more than 20 trained volunteers, with 16 of those from the Ulster County 4-H Club. Three are from the Senior Youth Methodist Fellowship, United Methodist Church of Port Ewen and two are physically handicapped adults.

The 14-week program is partially funded by the Ulster County Youth Board and meets for two hours each Saturday.

The Children's Rehabilitation Center is currently celebrating its 25th anniversary.

Old Custom Observed Once More

John Johnston and Florence Risley discuss items on Craft Table during the annual Donation Day last week at the Hudson Valley Senior Residence, 80 Washington Ave. Originally, the farmers in the area brought contributions of fruits and vegetables for the winter months, and people made cash donations. Today, the residents at the home, with the assistance of the board of directors, arrange a bazaar and tea for the annual occasion.

State Director Featured Speaker

AARP Chapter 975 Marks 5th

NEW PALTZ — Chapter 975, American Association of Retired Persons, celebrated its fifth anniversary last Tuesday with a dinner at Dominick's Restaurant in New Paltz.

Arthur O. Burgess of Mohawk, AARP state director, was the featured speaker. Burgess characterized the goals of the organization as DIP—dignity, independence and purpose.

"You may not have all the money you want or need, but you can be independent with what you have," he told more than 100 members amd guests.

Burgess noted that there were more than 2,700 chartered chapters across the nation, including 137 in New York State. The latter total includes a new chapter being formed in Kerhonkson by former members of Chapter 975.

Marian Turck, the chapter president, introduced Kay Lacey, a former chapter member who is now assistant state director for the western

Marion Turck

Hudson valley, and Rose Fontan of Wappingers Falls, who holds a similar title for the eastern Hudson valley.

Edmund Drake served as master of ceremonies for the dinner program. Joseph Lorenzo of Highland and his wife, Elsie, both former chapter presidents, reviewed the group's activities during its five years of existence.

Lorenzo noted that the chapter had played a prominent part in the planning for the Ulster County "Dial-a-Bus" program in conjunction with the Ulster County Office for the Aging, had manned an information booth for five years at the Ulster County Fair, had worked at the information booth situated at the Kingston Thruway exit, had worked with blood pressure, swine flu and other health clinics, and now maintains its own blood pressure service for members, headed by Margaret Creegan, R.N.

Other chapter activities include donations to the Huguenot Historical Society for trees in the stone house area of New Paltz, a donation of folding chairs to the New Paltz VFW post, which furnishes meeting space for chapter meetings, and donations to the Andrus Foundation for cancer research and to the Tri-County Burn Treatment Center.

Jeannette Olson served as dinner chairman, assisted by Helen Drake and Jessie Shepherd.

Maennerchor Concert, Dance Slated

KINGSTON—German folksongs, songs by the men's chorus, women's chorus, piano selections and an original song are listed for the annual Fall Concert and Dance sponsored by Kingston Maennerchor and Damenchor Inc., Saturday, Nov. 6, 8 p.m. at The Colonade, 1 Albany Ave.

A song entitled "You Are the One" written by Edmond Fabbie will be performed in public for the first time with the composer at the piano and his sister, Ingrid Fabbie, accompanying on the flute. Their mother, Mrs. Lester C. Legg, is a member of the women's chorus.

Among the German folksongs will be "Die Gedanken Sind Frei" and "Ich Ging Einmal, Spazieren," and "Wanderlied" by G. Onnen.

Fred Schreiner, the club's president, will sing a bass solo, "The House I Live In," by Robinson.

There will be selections by the men's chorus and also by the combined choruses.

The singing group is conducted by Julius Hochmuth with Katherine Ulrich at the piano. Chairperson is Ingeburg Legg.

Hurley Lists Speaker

HURLEY—Mrs. Bertha Campbell, for many years involved with parent co-op nursery schools and presently an Associate im the Bureau of Child Development and Parent Education of the New York State Education Department, will be a guest speaker at the Hurley Nursery School Thrusday, Nov. 4, 7:30 p.m.

A display and presentation on the topic, "Books and Toys for Holiday Giving: A Guide for Selecting Appropriate Gifts for Young Children," will be given.

Mrs. Campbell will discuss criteria for evaluating and selecting appropriate toys and books for young children, the infants through six years of age.

The Hurley Nursery School is located in the Hurley Reformed Church, old Rte. 209. The meeting is open to the public.

Blood Pressure Clinic

SAUGERTIES—The Saugerties Jaycees, working with Paramont Pharmacy and Department Store, have announced the date for the next free blood pressure clinic. It will be held Thursday, Nov. 4, at the pharmacy on Main St., from 1 to 3 p.m. with two nurses in attendance. Note should be made that the clinic will be held Thursday rather than on a Wednesday.

Public response to the clinics has been excellent and as long as the response indicates that the project is worthwhile, it will be continued.

Cooperation is received from the support of the Mid-Hudson Heart Association and individuals from Saugerties who volunteer their time to take the blood pressure readings.

WELCOME BACK

Victorian Photographic Gallery)

During National School Lunch Week this year parents, grandparents and friends of the Woodstock Elementary School students were invited to eat at the school for a Thursday luncheon. Senior Citizens of the area also were invited and guests totaled 165 adults and 32 students. Among those welcomed back was Mrs. Fred Toms, a former teacher in the Woodstock School. At first she taught in the two-room school and then in the present building for a total of 26 years before her retirement in 1953.

Dear Abby

Better Halt the Toot and Pray in Church

DEAR ABBY: I don't think loving the Lord is anything to joke about, so when I saw this bumper sticker on the car ahead of me that said, "HONK IF YOU LOVE JESUS," I honked my horn. I guess maybe I overdid it because the next thing I knew I had a motorcycle cop alongside me, asking to see my driver's license. I showed him it fast and asked him what I did wrong, and he asked me why I was honking my horn.

When I said, "Because I love Jesus," he asked me if I had been drinking.

Well, Abby, he didn't give me a ticket; he just chewed me out for disturbing the peace, and told me not to do it again.

My question: Was I wrong to honk?—LOVES JESUS

DEAR LOVES: Maybe a short toot would have been enough to let Jesus know you love him, but in the future you'd better do your heavy praying in church.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a gal, nearly 20, and a sophomore in college.

Last summer I met a kid at the beach. (I'll call him Brian.) We dug each other right away and have been going together ever since. (We're really in love.)

Brian said he was 18, and I told him I was also 18. He's 6 ft. tall, weighs 175, is very well build and LOOKS 18. I'm small and have always looked younger than my age.

Brian dropped out of high school to take a construction job until the Navy calls him for training for some special kind of job.

Abby, I accidentally saw his driver's license and learned that Brian is only 16 years old! When I told him I knew, he said he hated lying to me, but was afraid I wouldn't date him if I knew his right age.

Then I told him my right age and he said it didn't matter. Do you think he's too young for me? Now that I know he's only 16, I feel that he is, but before then, I didn't. We've even talked about marriage.—AGE DIFFERENCE.

DEAR DIFFERENCE: If you didn't feel that Brian was too young for you until you accidentally found out, you're probably well-matched, regardless of your ages. But for your sake as well as his, defer marriage until his future is more clearly defined.

DEAR ABBY: My son is married to a girl who doesn't like to cook. They brag that in the two years they've been married they haven't eaten anything but breakfast at home—and on Sundays they usually go out for Sunday brunch!

They both work and don't have any kids (thank the good Lord, or they'd be dragging the kids out to eat every night), but I think it's a disgrace the way they live in restaurants and drive-ins.

I once expressed my opinion on that subject, and they both gave me an argument about how much money they "saved" by eating out because groceries were so expensive.

I'll leave it to you, Abby. Are they right or are they wrong? —HIS MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: As long as they aren't asking me (or you) to pick up the tab, it's none of my (or your) business.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope.

Musical Program

POUGHKEEPSIE—The Fires of London, a widely known British classical ensemble, will perform at the Skinner Recital Hall of Vassar College on Tuesday, Nov. 2, at 8:30 p.m. The concert, sponsored by the Vassar Department of Music, is open to the public, without charge.

The eight-musician ensemble was described by an English publication as consisting of the "the finest players in this country, handpicked by Peter Maxwell Davies, the leading British composer of his generation." With Davies as director, the instruments include percussion, keyboard instruments, flutes, violin and viola, clarinets, and cello. There also is a soprano and reciter.

The group will perform "Pierrot Lunaire" by Arnold Schoenberg, "Ave Maris Stella" by Davies, and "Antechrist," a treatment by Davies of a 13th century anonymous composition.

Shame On You, Mr. Rosenstock
• Hinchey is the only one of our state legislators who does not receive lulus.
• Hinchey is the only one who introduced bills to eliminate lulus. A. 11910, 11981, 11982.
• Hinchey voted against the lulus the other three legislators from this area received. Chapter 666-Laws of 1976.

Shame On You, Mr. Rosenstock
• You boast that you would have voted against every tax bill that came up in the last legislative session.
• Don't you know that would have meant higher property taxes?
• And also an unbalanced budget . . .
. . . And less state aid to education?

Shame On You, Mr. Rosenstock
• You were so eager to get elected you did not check your facts:
• You claimed Assemblyman Hinchey voted to give unemployment benefits to prisoners on work relief programs. The opposite is true. Check Bill A3479.
• You accused him of abolishing the Office of Welfare Inspector General. Again untrue. Check S4854.
• You could have got the facts by calling the Assembly Information office in Albany. 518-472-6630.

Shame On You, Mr. Rosenstock
• You talk about truth and honesty in government but will not release a financial statement as other candidates have done.
• Assemblyman Hinchey has published his Federal Income Tax return, making full financial disclosure.
• Apparently you are afraid to face the first test every office holder must undergo.

SHAME On You
Mr. Rosenstock
• Your paid P.R. employee, called at Hinchey's office a few weeks ago and was shown an official list of Hinchey's staff. Nevertheless in the final week of the campaign you deliberately distorted that list by adding 7 names that do not belong. You were advised against doing this by your own people.
• Official records in Albany have tripped you up again.

Boycott Urged

SAUGERTIES — With the price of sugar down again, the Irate Consumers of Ulster County are now taking aim on the high price of coffee.

"At these prices, coffee is a luxury we cannot afford," the Irate Consumers said in a press release calling for a boycott on coffee.

"Change your drinking habits, and the prices will go down," the group said. "Cross coffee off your shopping list."

Rave Review for New Play

Actress Maria Schell, left, with daughter Maria Therese, shares a laugh with fellow actress Colleen Dewhurst after the premiere of Pavel Kohout's play "Poor Murderer" at the Ethel Barrymore Theater. In the psychodrama set in a mental institute in the year 1900 Schell, in her Broadway debut, portrays a member of an acting company. Clive Barnes of the New York Times termed her performance "desperately eloquent," and predicted the play "is going to be one of the highlights of our season."

County Joins in Ski Show

KINGSTON — Ulster will join with three adjacent counties to participate in the Expo '76 ski show scheduled for the New York City Coliseum Nov. 18 through 21.

As a member of the Catskill Region Information Association, the county will share a booth with Delaware, Greene and Sullivan Counties at the trade fair.

Operators of six local ski facilities also are working with the group and will help promote Ulster as a "winter vacationland" — including operators of Hidden Valley Lake resort, Highmount Ski Center, Mt. Cathalia, Rocking Horse Ranch, Ski Minnewaska and Williams Lake Ski Resort.

Al Cawein, director of the county's public relations office is president of the Catskill group.

How Sweet It Is

As the sugar cane harvest gets underway, sugar mills throughout the State of Louisiana, like this one at Meeker, are expecting a harvest equal to last years. A truck just in from the fields is being unloaded and the vast piles of cane will soon be processed into sugar.

Winter Driving Warnings Issued

KINGSTON — Warnings about the deadly tricks winter has in store for Kingston drivers went out this week from Police Chief Julius Glassman who said reduced visability and loss of adequate traction are the main concern.

"Our major winter traffic tieups and skid-crashes can be traced back to one or a combination of these factors," Chief Glassman said." Drivers must re-accustom themselves to adverse weather conditions and their vehicles must undergo important changes too."

Chief Glassman recommended slower than normal speeds and increasingly greater distance between vehicles.

Concerning before-the-rush vehicle maintenance, he suggested that drivers follow checklists endorsed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police and based on testing carried out by the Committee on Winter Driving Hazards of the National Safety Council.

Engine tune-ups are indispensible to dependable starts when the mercury plunges. More importantly, a sputtering, unresponsive engine makes vehicle control on snow and ice-slick surfaces unnecessarily difficult if not impossible, he explained.

Having a battery checked at tune-up time is a good idea as well as checking the generator or alternator, wiring and distributor.

Glassman recommends the car be checked to see that lights are working and clean, that the entire exhaust system is tight and that tires have good treads.

Good treads are important any time of the year, and especially when pavements are slippery. It's important remember that the type of tread is more important than whether the tire is of bias belted or radial construction. Tires with snow treads improve traction in the snow, but are less effective on glare ice.

Glassman advises that recommended proportions of anti-freeze are a must and that permanent anti-freeze should be replaced every two years

Dead windshield wiper blades and weak-pressure wiper arms can't clear snow and ice build-ups. "Dead" blades are cracked and dry and will streak. Replace them and have the heater-defroster checked too.

Uneven braking will throw a car into a skid on winter-slicked roads. Brakes should be checked and adjusted, if necessary.

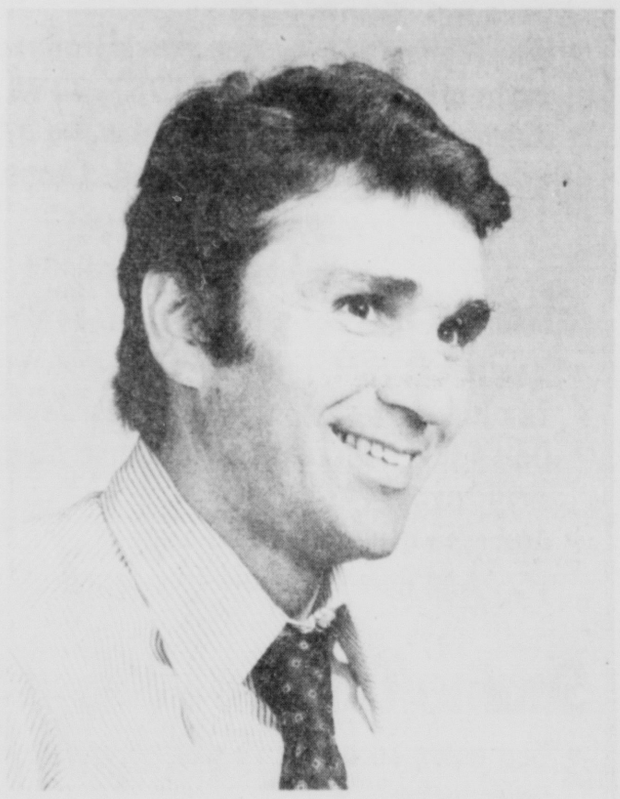

Glassman believes the that tire chains are by far the best assist for all around protection under severe weather conditions— deep snow and glare ice. And the best of these are reinforced tire chains.

"Time and money spent today to get car ready for winter could be the best investment you can make for your family's security and your own peace of mind when winter hits," Glassman concluded.

Gala Homecoming

Veteran movie actress Ruth Gordon stands with her husband Garson Kanin, right, and Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia of Quincy, Mass., before a huge cake honoring her 80th birthday and six decades of stardom, a tribute to her by her home city of Quincy. The event took place at the Chateau de Ville.

Bigamist Nabbed at Altar

SAN CRISTOBAL ECATEPEC, Mexico (UPI) — When the priest asked if there were any impediments to the wedding, a Mexico City traffic policeman and would-be bigamist was nabbed at the altar by federal judicial police waving an arrest warrant.

They were followed by the groom's first wife, who engaged in a shoving match with the bride, Elvia Manjarrez Curz, 20, whose civil marriage to Jose Luis Espinosa Duenas three months ago was being confirmed in the religious ceremony.

Espinosa, 25, a traffic policeman in Mexico City, was jailed on charges of bigamy in this industrial suburb northeast of Mexico City.

Graciela Alicia Jimenez Ruiz de Espinosa, 21, told authorities she and Espinosa had been married in Michoacan State in November, 1973, and the couple had a young daughter.

Police Promote Members

KINGSTON — Several promotions to for members of the Civil Defense Auxiliary Police were announced this week by Ulster County Civil Defense Director John Adsit.

Frank Rockwell was promoted to chief; Lorraine Peone to lieutenant; Sheldon Harris to sergeant; and Patricia Hurley to corporal.

The Auxiliary Police have contributed several hundred volunteer man-hours over the past few months serving as aides to local law enforcement during many of the Bicentennial parades, fire company and departments functions and activities at the State Armory in Kingston.

Training programs are being conducted now for the entire membership including newly appointed patrolmen.

Veterans Observance On Nov. 11

KINGSTON — Donald G. Moore, state veterans counselor, this week issued a call to all Kingston-area citizens to take an active part in this year's Veterans Day observance Nov. 11.

The holiday "honors those who died in service to our country and the more than 29 million living veterans who are the very backbone of our democracy," Moore said.

Moore, local representative of the State Veterans Day Observance Committee, is working with local veteran organizations to encourage greater participation in the national ceremonies.

The first unknown soldier was entombed in Arlington National Cemetery 54 years ago. Today, there are three.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, NOV. 2

Your Birthday Today: Your year is full of surprises requiring expansive, optimistic readjustments. You must grow with the times, accept broader responsibility and deal with many more people on several levels of cooperation. Drop impractical ventures now; long-standing limitations have lost importance and are bypassed by new approaches. Today's natives are natural showmen and often conceal their true circumstances. Those born this year are determined to be different from others of their generation at all costs.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Abruptly changing your mind is normal. A big story that breaks is incomplete, put out with the intention of stirring up commotion.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Cast your vote early! Last-minute arguments achieve nothing. Express your true wishes in action, go on with work under choppy conditions. Observe safety rules despite distractions.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Pay no attention to rumors or wild advertising pitches. Do top-priority jobs first as stop-and-start circumstances generate interruptions. Don't joke or tease.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Let common sense prevail. Some shifting occurs, and some is merely talk, not based on actual movement. Consult specialists in their field on legal questions.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): If too conservative, you get left behind; if too liberal, you draw criticism. The late afternoon has an uncertain quality. Wait until tomorrow to hear the final story.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Subtle change deep within isn't altogether a response to external excitement. You wander off your old path into something new.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): There's no guarantee you will or won't get what you thought you wanted. Even if you do, it's inconvenient. Expresse yourself where it counts, but set limits on what you spend.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Charity begins at home; be patient with your limitations. Don't crowd people who get in your way. Technical work is under fire; errors loom in all fields.

Sagitarrius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your prospects include inspiration or provocation for response from higher-ups. Nothing remains as it was a short time ago, so get a firm grasp on the future.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Save wear and tear on the nerves. Once you do your part, go along for the ride as if it's entertainment. Public comments are up in the air.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your immediate resources suffer some drain, whether cash or energy, unless you pull back from the mad speculative scramble of those around you.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Historical moves are completed, but details are still

TEEN FORUM

By JEAN ADAMS, Ph.D.

NEVER: (Q.) Just before school started, I went to the shore for three weeks. Never in my life have I had so much fun. I met three special boys and it was fantastic.

Every time I think of all the fun I had and all the friends I may never see again, I almost want to cry. I know there will never be a time like that again. — Blue in PennsYivania.

(A.) Every day is different and every time in our lives is different. You won't have that time again, but you will have many other good times, and some of them may be even better than that one.

We can't be "high" every moment or even every day. Life isn't like that. But if you will let yourself, you can find fun with your friends at school and though it may not be as exciting, it will can be just as enjoyable, just as much fun.

Summer may seem far behind — or far ahead. Be thankful now for the high points in your past and look forward to high points in the future. You will have more — lots of tnem.

SMOKING: (Q.) It's two o'clock in the morning and I'm so confused I can't sleep. The reason is I like this boy Dickie very much, but he smokes.

I'm afraid to ask him to quit or not to smoke around me. It's not only that I don't want him to smoke around me, but I'm concerned about him becauae I know that smoking is bad for him.

And on top of all that, my friends look down on him because he smokes and I'm afraid they won't like me anymore because I like him. What should I do? — Sleepless in Alabama.

(A.) Dickie's health should concern you more than what other people think or say.

All you can reasonably do is seriously discuss with him what he is doing to himself and ask him to stop — not for you but for himself. I urge you to do that.

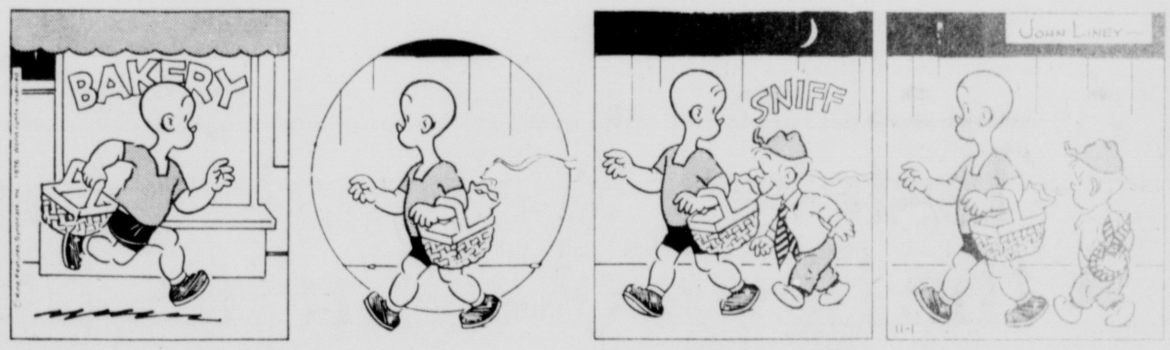

Don't mention your concern about what other people think. Stick to the better reason — his own well-being. And don't threaten him with a breakup. But if after you have talked to him, he doesn't stop, make your decision about whether he's worth the price.

FAULTY OPENING LEAD INDUCES BAD GUESS

To play bridge well is fine, but to tell others how to play is finer—and far less trouble. You wouldn't believe how easy it is for me, sitting on the sidelines, to explain what went wrong in today's hand and to tell you how to avoid such predicaments.

Opening lead — ♠ 2

If South had played dummy's low spade at the first trick, East might have come up with the right answer. But South craftily played dummy's ten of spades, convincing East that South's singleton spade was a low card.

It was reasonable to credit West with the king of spades for his raise to two spades. Who can blame East for playing the jack of spades at the first trick?

Only the first trick was important. South swooped on East's jack of spades with the singleton king, drew trumps in two rounds and cheerfully conceded a diamond and two clubs.

A MORAL

If you're looking for a moral, think of the opening lead. West's raise to two spades marked him with at least three spades. He could afford to lead his highest spade (the nine) without any fear that East would read that as the top of a doubleton.

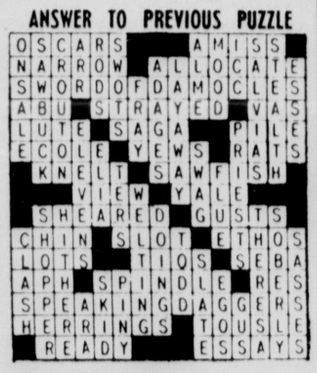

The lead of the nine of spades would tell East that South had the king. It would be easy for East to see that it was vital to take the ace of spades and cash out. He would next take the ace of diamonds and would switch to clubs on getting a discouraging three of diamonds from his partner on the second trick.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player bids three diamonds (explained as a weak jump overcall). You hold: ♠Q105 ♡K987 ◇10862 ♣Q6. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three hearts. This is a very skimpy hand for a double raise, but partner is sure to understand that the raise may well have been made under pressure. If you had a really good hand you would jump to four hearts.

Tar/Taste Theory Exploded.

Taste-science breakthrough gives low tar MERIT the flavor of cigarettes having 60% more tar.

By locating certain flavor-rich ingredients in cigarette smoke, ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar, researchers at Philip Morris have disproven the theory that cigarette flavor depends on the amount of tar that goes with it.

They've discovered how to pack flavor—unprecedented flavor—into a cigarette that delivers one of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

The discovery is called 'Enriched Flavor.'™ It's extra flavor, natural flavor, and only MERIT has it.

Tests Verify Taste

In taste tests involving thousands of cigarette smokers like yourself, MERIT was reported to deliver as much—or more—taste than current low tar leaders.

What's really startling is that these brands have up to 60% more tar than MERIT.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough.
